70 MYRON JENNISON FILES

Professor Files retired in 1954 as Goldthwaite Professor of Rhetoric at Tufts College after teaching students for forty years. He and Mrs. Files are now living on their farm in Appleton, Maine. The subject of the poem lives there, too.

When the Old Man Goes

By Myron J. Files

He sat there calm as a Yogi
On the broad granite shelf
At the edge of the cellar hole
Waiting, the day's work done,
For the car that would take him home.
Patient — the old turtle — patient
As the cool stone beneath him
Or the twisted lilacs at the wall's corner
That mark the ancient homesite.

Not yet one hundred years old,
Yet eighty easily; the in-wrapped
Gaze toward you, yet not upon you, or looking by
You, or through you — as if you were invisible,
And he meditating upon a thought
Begun by grandsires —
The kind of thought fat Brahmas
Hold in that think-pouch between the eyes
For a thousand dreamy years,
As an old lady holds her peppermint lozenge
Under her tongue.

He lives so long by being sparing
Of talk, nervous movements, or fidgets.
He "mows out" close to house walls and barn
Where the tractor mower can not reach
While younger men harvest the open fields,
Hand mowing to them a lost art.
His scythe rides gently on the ground
A short arc, back and forth,
Seeming to swing by its own weight,
He using no strength, except in slow shuffle,
And the grass falls before the blade
Almost as if frightened and untouched.

The Old Man makes hard work seem easy
And scorned drudgery a morning's pleasure.
No one in our town, they say,
Except the Old Man, knows how to mow
Clean. No one wants to know; they are the new Machine men and curse the stubborn chores

That won't be mechanized. But,
What will the young men do
When the Old Man goes?
He the last who knows the forgotten arts?
They go to him when they can't make
Apple juice turn into vinegar,
When it turns to bitter stuff instead.

They ask him to find the boggy place on the Ridge
Where the bulldozer can gnaw out a pond
For the new fire truck to drink.
Only the Old Man will know for sure
Which bog bakes hard in August,
Which holds gravel saturated with spring water
The driest spell; he too can save the cow
Menaced in calf birth; he can recall
Where ran the boundary line between two angry farmers
And they'd accept no other referee.

He gives freely what he knows when asked,
Yet asks nothing, nor shows surprise nor fears.
The news that startles men — the Pearl Harbors —
Makes them look fearful at each other,
Disturbs not the neutralism of old age:
Young men have hot emotions,
Old men have cool thoughts.
And his thoughts seem not of our world
But are remote and cold as the North Star.

He is among us but not of us,
And when we need his secret wisdom,
His knowledge of forgotten arts,
We must recall him from where his mind
Wanders in hill pastures,
And every time it's harder to bring him back
Or hold him till we get from him
What we need to learn
Of what the Old Man, only, knows.
What will the young men do —
When the Old Man goes?

Cultivator

By John Holmes, '29

HE could have run a brookside mill,
A barny building, three old men
Working a twenty-foot soaked wheel
That dribbles out but drinks in Power to turn one shaft, to tool

From country woods to wood a wooden
Use — bowl, dowel, or helve —
And happy there have been warden
Of such work and words, and selve
Himself, hoeing a nearby garden.

He could have raised apples, lived
Up ladders in a midst of spray,
Cursing the lost, boxing up the saved,
Washing apple's many enemies away.
He did. To prove it can be proved.

But his farming runs in and over
And out from book to brook to apple
And back again, till to discover
Emerson among the baldwins, tell people
Apart from trees, is a leaf-dapple

In New England sunlight, names, names
Of listeners flickering in fields
Of pages of chairs of classrooms.
Little by little the orchard yields,
Though the good shoulder lames.

He pounds in handy home-made pegs
To hold down larger transcendensions.
Not one to set up famous flags,
He is an explorer of five dimensions,
But needs more north for his own legs.

Hungry for green, he sees ground-pine
Springing up underfoot, smells it,
Smiles, makes mystic Melville plain,
Sits Dreiser by Franklin on fence-rails,
And wonders what century he's in.

Now in his hale middle years he shouts
A huge joy from a ridge in Maine,
Buried in blueberries. The tax abates
Where a man's brush and bushes are his own.
It is his levy, not the state's

On his own bones he pays, and glad to.
Hear him wake up the standing timber,
Joking or drawling his Thoreau or God.
He moves, he mills log and lumber,
Lecturing to build citizen-head.

Where autumn's red, and spring's red
In some of the green, and the water-wheel
Pushes when the stream is full, he could
Have run a brookside mill, and did.
His lathe has grained the grain of wood.

Rational Occupation

We are the Seniors of the Class of '55. We came to Tufts four years ago, not quite certain of what we would find. We were eager to learn and we looked forward with a bright and hopeful anticipation.

Looking at ourselves now we are at once excited and bewildered by what we see, for we are different from the people who first arrived at this Hill. Certain changes, somewhat indefinable, have come over us. They are incomplete, but as we view the results thus far we can say critically, yet with satisfaction — It is good. It will be better.

We made a wide and objective survey of our class this year through a poll of senior attitudes, thoughts and values. We answered questions that attempted to discover the ways in which all aspects of our life at Tufts have affected us and shared in the forming of the individuals we now are, and we found it difficult to rate the intensity of our opinions on a scale ranging from "not at all" to "very much." Though the results which appear on the following pages are presented to give a generalized view of the Class feelings as a whole, we can relate ourselves personally to them for we know that the entire picture could have no existence at all without each one of us.

The changing world outside Tufts we have considered also, for nothing can exist by itself and we have greatly felt the influence of the activity going on around us. The perpetual state of cold and too frequently fiery war which we have known all our college lives, the uneasy governments of Europe and the political manoeuvres of our own statesmen have altered our future plans, and which of us could remain unaffected by the barrage of stereophonic sound, bermuda shorts or the chlorophyll craze.

And though the course of our life at college is predetermined to a large degree, a presidential campaign or a World Series left none of us quite unmoved. The books we chose to read, the theories we took for our own — the very songs we whistled and the slang we used mirrored a whole universe of literature, politics, science and art.

So we borrowed a bit from events close by as well as those a continent away, and carried on our own activities here at Tufts. The history of our class relates what we did in four years of college, and much of it seems not unlike the doings of a hundred classes before us. But we are a group of unique individuals in a world that is never quite the same from day to day and we know that the things we did here are exclusively our own; the ways in which we lived our last four years can never be duplicated, even by ourselves.

Perhaps it was the voiceless knowledge of that fact that made Senior Week the frantic whirl it must always be. It was the last collective activity of the Class of '55 and as we danced our way through the Senior Cruise and the Prom, and stood motionless under the wave of the Alma Mater at Pops, our emotions ran feverishly high. These were our last moments of being college students and we barely slept at all, so anxious were we to pack the memory of four years into four brief days.

So we turn the page and take a final look at ourselves and the Seniors who changed along with us. It is not a memory of the buildings or the lawns of our college that we will carry within us for a long time to come, though of course the physical aspects of our four years at Tufts could not be completely separated out. But it is rather the people we knew here, those whose faces look out at us from this book, and all the others who contributed to our education and our individual growth, that have had the greatest and most enduring effect on us. This is the page most difficult to close.

We are the Seniors of the Class of '55. We came to Tufts four years ago not quite certain of what we would find. We were eager to learn and we looked forward with a bright and hopeful anticipation.

We are leaving in the same way.

Senior Survey

By Lois Epstein

OUR final registration day was one we had looked forward to since the close of that first hectic rush in September, 1951. We were anxious to answer "yes" to "Do you expect to graduate at the end of this semester?" -- anxious to put the finishing touches to the portrait of us as college students. But we were startled a bit in an unexpected way when we suddenly were made very conscious of ourselves, of what we looked like, what we thought and felt, and of how four years at Tufts had affected us, really.

We were asked to write all this down, to make a scale of our ideas and impressions. We were searching for an average opinion, knowing this to be an unreality of statistics, yet we could see that some basic points of agreement, some collective tastes and attitudes did exist. Three hundred seventeen of us answered a questionnaire and wondered -- "are we average?"

WHEN we first came to Tufts we were filled with expectations and ideas concerning all phases of our coming collegiate years. Some of us looked forward to a whirling social life, to showing off our athletic prowess, to making lots of friends or being leaders in the extra-curricular life -- and some of us even wanted to improve our minds.

But whether scholasticism came first in our goals or was just a necessary evil that enabled us to remain in this wonderful world called college, we all had to choose a major field of study. Looking at our class now we find a very thorough division into almost every department of the school.

Of those who replied to the poll, one-third of the Liberal Arts students majored in Government or Economics and a quarter in Bio-Chemistry. 20 percent of the Jackson girls of '55 majored in Sociology and the English department claimed 17 percent. 10 percent chose Government and the same number went into Biology. Among the Engineers, 35 percent followed Mechanical and an equal number selected Electrical Engineering. One quarter of those interviewed were Civil Engineers and we claim one Chemical Engineer.

In view of the present occupational plans of our class, which will be discussed further, it is interesting that only 1 percent of the Liberal Arts students and 5 percent of Jackson majored in Education.

Whatever our field it appears that we chose well: 52 percent of the L. A. respondents, 62 percent of Jackson and 72 percent of the Engineers interviewed have been very much satisfied with their choice of major. This satisfaction seems to be correlated with the extent to which our majors have contributed to our broad, general education. Between 75 and 80 percent of both the Liberal Arts and Jackson respondents were quite a bit or very much satisfied in this respect as were some 65 percent of the Engineers.

Some dissatisfaction on the part of the Engineers was expressed in that there was not room enough for Liberal Arts electives. Within the field of Engineering itself however it is felt that an excellent background in all fields was given.

In line with this we find that nearly 90 percent of the Engineers feel their training has adequately prepared them for a vocation. This feeling is somewhat less among the other seniors however, where 29 percent of the L. A. respondents feel very much prepared for a vocation and 34 percent quite a bit so. These percentages are similar among the Jacksonites. 30 percent consider themselves very well prepared vocation-wise, 35 percent quite a bit. It should be noted here however, that many of us did not choose our majors as backgrounds for a future job, but rather for gaining a good liberal education, and in that respect we have been well satisfied.

OUR major field itself is but one of the many things involved in our academic life at Tufts.

Our class did very well scholastically. We can boast 83 scholarship recipients of those interviewed: 25 percent from Liberal Arts and Jackson each, and 31 percent from the Engineers.

We have examined the courses offered here and found them good. Of the L. A. students, 54 percent were well satisfied with the variety of curriculum. Three quarters of the Jacksonites and 63 percent of the Engineers were satisfied in this respect also. We found a very similar breakdown regarding satisfaction with the quality of the courses themselves where 57 percent of Liberal Arts, 66 percent of the Engineers and 59 percent of Jackson expressed positive reactions.

Most of us found quite a bit of intellectual stimulation from the courses we took, which after all is one of the most important requirements of a good education. Three-fourths of the Tufts men, 68 percent of Jackson and 70 percent of the Engineers were stimulated to independent thinking by their courses.

We voiced a mild criticism of teaching methods though. 70 percent of L. A., 80 percent of Jackson and three-quarters of the Engineers found the techniques fairly satisfactory. About 10 percent of all the respondents were only very little satisfied with the classroom methods. The root of this can perhaps be found in the comments about the lack of student participation in the classes.

Less than half the students were even quite content with this and 29 percent of the L. A. respondents and 28 percent from Jackson were very little or not at all satisfied with the amount of participation. The Engineers did not express as much discontent. Only 13 percent were very little satisfied and none were not at all.

Where the faculty itself is concerned the large majority of our class has been well satisfied. 69 percent of Liberal Arts, 70 percent of Jackson and 81 percent of the Engineers rated the faculty for the most part as very capable. Generally also, the personal contacts we made with our professors served as a satisfying source of intellectual stimulation. 84 percent of the L. A. respondents, 83 percent at Jackson and 76 percent of the Engineers found this to be so.

Viewing the academic picture as objectively as we can, our class is proud of our alma mater and very much satisfied with her scholastic reputation. The Engineers boast the loudest here, 97 percent being well satisfied. 77 percent of the L. A. men and 82 percent of Jackson are likewise satisfied with the place Tufts has earned in the academic world.

It is evident to all of us as we approach graduation that though important, the scholastic aspects of Tufts do not tell the whole story of our college education.

The people we met at Tufts — in classes, dormitories, extra-curricular activities — on dates — had a vital influence on us and we gained much from most of them.

In rating the contacts we made outside of classes, 82 percent of the L. A. respondents, 95 percent of the Jacksonites and three-quarters of the Engineers expressed a high degree of satisfaction.

Any discussion of dorm life must of course take into account those of our class who lived off-hill, which encompasses 45 percent of the L. A. respondents, 22 percent of those from Jackson and 71 percent of the Engineers, or a total number of 140 students. Those who did live in dormitories generally liked them, Jackson being the most satisfied with 83 percent very contented.

The extra-curricular program, which offered us an infinite variety of activities, was also rated highly by 53 percent of Liberal Arts, 63 percent of Jackson and 47 percent of the Engineers. 32 percent of the L. A. respondents, 42 percent of Jackson and 30 percent of the Engineers found some intellectual stimulation in these activities, which small percentages indicate that our interest in extra-curricular life was largely a social and relaxation-seeking one.

School spirit however was not considered very high. Only a quarter of the class rates it as good, while the wide majority vary in their opinions of it within a range of not at all to somewhat satisfactory.

Dating opportunities in retrospect were on the positive side. 72 percent of the L. A. students and 91 percent of the Jackson respondents were well satisfied. From the 31 percent who did not know, it appears that the Engineers did not date as much from the Hill, though a third of them expressed satisfaction with social possibilities on campus.

An all over feeling indicates that quite a bit of intellectual stimulation was provided by our contact with other students. 60 percent of Liberal Arts, 77 percent of Jackson and 54 percent of the Engineers found this to be true.

Getting to know the faculty was another factor of our education. 63 percent of the Engineers found this easier to do than did the L. A. men where half found faculty fairly easy to meet on a personal basis, or the Jacksonites, only 37 percent of whom felt the faculty were at all easy to get acquainted with. More of the Engineers too, 71 percent, were satisfied with the number of faculty acquaintances they were able to make, while of the L. A. men 54 percent got to know a satisfactory number of their professors, and at Jackson 47 percent of the respondents were satisfied with the number of faculty contacts they made.

FRATERNITIES and sororities were, for many of the class of '55, a major aspect of college life. A total of 133 of the respondents to the poll, 43 percent of Liberal Arts, 43 percent of Jackson and 23 percent of the Engineers, belonged to the thirteen Greek letter organizations at Tufts.

The prevalent feeling of all the students though is that these societies are not at all important for an adequate and enjoyable collegiate life. 23 percent of the L. A. men, 38 percent of the Jackson respondents and 32 percent of the Engineers inclined to this point of view, while 30 percent of the L. A. respondents, 13 percent of the Jacksonites and 10 percent of the Engineers feel they are very important.

We find a similar distribution regarding membership in fraternities and sororities as contributing forces to personal maturity, though these percentages are tempered by the non-members who do not know about this aspect. 16 percent of the L. A. men, 23 percent of the Engineers and 27 percent of the Jacksonites said that fraternity did not at all add to their maturity. On the other hand, 24 percent of the L. A. men, 8 percent of the Engineers and 13 percent of Jackson felt that membership in these groups did contribute very much to their growing-up process.

Considering the contributions of fraternities and sororities on a larger scale, 61% of L. A. respondents, 54% of the Engineers and half of those from Jackson feel they aid school activities and spirit.

The much discussed question of the justness and unjustness of fraternities and sororities arises, and there is a general point of agreement in our class that these societies as presently constituted are very little if at all detrimental to collegiate life. 59% of Liberal Arts, 54% of the Engineers and 72% of Jackson responded in this way.

THE backwards glance at our college life has seen some of the external influences on the class of '55. But throughout those four years we have developed internally as individuals and many changes in our outlook and opinions have taken place. The problem of maturity confronts us all our lives and perhaps the biggest advance toward it which we will ever make occurred in the time we spent at Tufts.

Reading has in general made quite a large contribution to our personal maturity. 59% of the L. A. respondents and 74% of those at Jackson were influenced by the books they absorbed. The Engineers were somewhat less affected in this way, only 36% of them found reading contributing to maturity, but this is probably due to the type of curriculum and the lack of emphasis on reading.

The majority of all students, 69% of Liberal Arts, 73% of the Engineers and 74% of Jackson found in their courses a large contribution to maturity.

Administrative rules have left something to be desired according to our class, of which 59% of Liberal Arts, 60% of the Engineers and 77% of Jackson rated them as contributing very little or not at all to maturity. The general attitude here stems from the fact that not enough responsibility is given to the students.

Keeping the number of off-hillers in mind, we find that a good percentage, one-third of Liberal Arts, 19% of the Engineers and 70% of the Jacksonites, are well pleased with the effect dorm living had on our personal development. It appears also that not only do fewer Jacksonites live off hill, probably because more men are allowed to live in boarding houses, but that the dormitory life itself at Jackson is the more satisfying.

It is both noteworthy and gratifying that very few of us replied "Don't know" to questions concerning the extra-curricular program; here we have a good indication of our participation in activities. And, though we may have joined them just for fun, three-quarters of the L. A. respondents, 78% of Jackson and 65% of the Engineers find that their activities have to some degree contributed to our maturity.

The personal faculty contacts we made also helped us to mature, according to the statements of 73% of Liberal Arts, 72% of the Engineers and 71% of Jackson.

The very fact of living away from home, which many of us did, seems to have had a large effect on the maturing process. Again recalling those who commuted from their homes, we see that 70% of Jackson, 46% of Liberal Arts and 44% of the Engineers considered the separation from parents and home beneficial.

College has of course caused certain changes in parent-child relations to come about, and these have mainly been for the better. Without a doubt we became more independent of our parents; 78% of Jackson, 74% of Liberal Arts and 60% of the Engineers agreed on this. The fact that 92% of the Engineers, 83% of the L. A. respondents and 59% of the Jackson girls, or a total of 249 students, have worked to earn part of their way through college, has probably been a major factor in our establishment of ourselves as independent individuals.

Along with a growing freedom, 88% of Jackson, 79% of the L. A. respondents and 77% of the Engineers have also become closer to our parents in the sense of being more able to enjoy their company at an adult level.

College seems to have had very little effect on our religious beliefs. Though some measure of change did occur, we tended to remain pretty much as we were when we entered Tufts. 46% of Liberal Arts, 40% of Jackson and 39% of the Engineers are not at all more religious, and 45% of Liberal Arts, 44% of Jackson and 51% of the Engineers have not become at all less religious while at college.

COLLEGE afforded us a wonderful opportunity to do the things we most enjoyed and to find other people to share them with. We developed many new interests here and discovered for ourselves things we'd only read about, while we were at Tufts.

Music hath charms it is said, and we all succumbed. Though our taste for its different forms varied widely, "classical" symphonic music was enjoyed by the largest number. The more modern symphonic music was enjoyed a great deal by about half the seniors. Opera was appreciated more by the girls than the men, and the same was true of ballet.

Jazz, especially Dixieland, caught the fancy of much of our class, and here the men were more enthusiastic. Progressive jazz was less popular, fewer than one-third of our class were devotees of this brand, and folk music, the original jazz form, was enjoyed to a high degree by about the same number. The ever-changing popular songs of our four years were a source of pleasure to over half our class.

Theater was a very popular form of entertainment to us at college. The girls enjoyed drama more than the men, but all bore out the adage that people go to the theater to be entertained, for comedy plays were rated the highest and musicals ranked next. Dramatic plays too were enjoyed a great deal by the majority of Tufts and Jackson.

Whether "better than ever" or not, we liked going to the movies. Particularly we enjoyed dramatic pictures, and about three-quarters of the students found historical, musical, and comedy movies very enjoyable. Foreign films were preferred more by the girls, but the Jacksonites had quite the opposite feelings regarding westerns, which were preferred by twice as many men as girls.

Museums afforded more pleasure to the females also, who enjoyed both art and science exhibits. The boys showed a definite preference for science museums over art galleries.

Sports were an important part of our college life. Most of us were spectators to all-school athletics, and football was by far our favorite. Basketball drew us in large numbers also, and the majority of our class found baseball attractive. Hockey was popular too with the men and with some of the Jacksonites, while soccer and lacrosse had followers in about a third of the class.

We liked to participate in sports too, not just on teams but for our individual pleasure. Swimming was the favorite sport, especially among the girls, and tennis ran a close second. Sailing was very popular with more than half the respondents. Golf was enjoyed more by the men and horse-back riding was enjoyed by about half of all the students.

Of the winter sports ice-skating ranked first, and almost 50% of our number liked to take off to the mountains for skiing.

Fishing and hunting stand out clearly as men's sports and they enjoyed quite a bit of popularity.

When we moved indoors bowling was a favorite activity and about a third of us rated roller-skating highly.

Dating was a very big part of our college life and best of all we liked to don our dancing shoes. We danced a lot while we were at Tufts, at all the school affairs, at the hotels and clubs in town and the more artistic souls among us footed it in leotards and tights. The foxtrot was far and away our favorite dance with the old-fashioned waltz not far behind in popularity. The girls in our class were lots more adventurous on the dance floor than their somewhat conservative Tufts partners, and it was not an uncommon sight to see the men standing self-consciously on the sidelines while their dates tapped impatient feet to the South American rhythms they liked so well. Nearly half the girls liked to Charleston too, but few of the boys would try it, and though a third of the Jackson gals were eager to jitterbug they could only find partners in a very small number of the males in our class. The Bunny Hop and the Mexican Hat Dance were played at all the dances, and more than half of us enjoyed these a great deal. Passing from the ballroom to the studio or stage we showed some interest in modern dance, but here again the Tufts men were more reluctant.

Going to the theater on a date was also rated highly by the large majority of our class, and movie dates were very much enjoyed. A musical evening was the choice many of us made, either at symphony or, for a different type of entertainment, listening to jazz. Sports events were considered good date destinations by most of us too.

The picture of the college student spending the better part of his time drinking, proved to be a false one, for only about one-third of us cared to spend an evening with a date in that way.

Most of all we enjoyed being with people, though the craze for big wild parties was tempered by desire for pure talk by the time we reached our Senior year. Few of us rated fraternity parties high on the list of what we liked to do on a date, though a large majority greatly enjoyed parties at the homes of friends. Perhaps it was a sign of maturity that, as Seniors, our ideas of good times had developed to a stage where the evenings we most enjoyed were those we spent just sitting and talking with people we liked.

AS we reach the end of four years of living within our college it is difficult indeed to give an objective analysis of what it has meant to us. At best we can abstract a generalized feeling about our school, and that feeling is a good one. The great majority of all students, 70% of the L. A. respondents, 78% of Jackson and 87% of the Engineers, have been highly satisfied with the total picture of four years in retrospect.

The degree to which we were satisfied with our own college training is reflected in our feelings about sending future children to Tufts and Jackson. On this account we find that among the L. A. students 55% would encourage a son to attend Tufts assuming he would want to go and 42% would encourage a daughter to attend Jackson. Among our female respondents 47% would encourage their son's attendance of Tufts, and 53% would urge a daughter to follow in their own footsteps. Three-quarters of the Engineers would highly encourage a son's application to Tufts and 32% would encourage a daughter to go to Jackson.

SO we stand, the class of '55 looking alternately forwards and backwards — unsure of what lies ahead and not yet fully aware of what we are leaving behind.

Most of us have some plans and goals before us, and these are as diversified as the personalities that conceived them. Occupation-wise our Engineers are most set, though 5% of them are planning on going into manufacturing and sales. Among the Liberal Arts men a quarter of the class are entering the field of medicine, 21% going into the business world and 12% embarking on law careers. 10% of the men want to teach, though only one-tenth that many majored in education. The Jacksonites are the least certain; 20% are still undecided as to future occupation. Five times as many as majored in it, 27% want to teach, 11% are going into Biology and 9% into Social Service work.

Although working fits the future of most of our class, the thirst for formal education has been whetted by the college experience, and plans for graduate school occupy our senior minds. Of the L. A. respondents 78% want to go to graduate school at some time and 46% want to go right after graduation. 56% of the Engineers have grad school aspirations, 8% for the next year. At Jackson 37% of the girls want to attend graduate school and a third of these plan on going on in September.

The matter of military service of course affects many plans for jobs or further schooling. The seniors are well aware of the highly uncertain age in which we are involved. About 70% of the class feels it is quite probable that another world war will occur during our lifetime.

Despite our somewhat shaky position, marriage remains one of our central concerns at present. 25 of our class are married already, 40 are engaged and another 75 are either pinned or going steady. 25% of the class from Jackson, 21% of those in Engineering, and 16% of Liberal Arts are planning on marriage within a year after graduation. And whether the prospect is far-off or imminent, we all have some very definite ideas of what we want in our future mates.

Intelligence is considered a necessary factor for our spouses by most of us, but it is particularly important to the Jacksonites, 92% of whom rate this very highly. About the same can be said of our desire for well-educated mates. 69% of the Jackson girls want men who are intellectually superior to themselves and, conveniently, more than three-quarters of the Tufts men and Engineers do not seek that quality in their wives. Common interests are also important to well over three-quarters of our class.

A similar socio-economic background is more important to the girls than to the Engineers and L. A. men. About half the respondents want marriage partners of the same religion as themselves and less than a quarter do not feel that this is at all important. There is a diversity of opinion on the general question of mixed marriages with twice as many seniors from Jackson and the Engineering school approving as disapprove. Though specific beliefs need not be the same, the great majority of us feel that similar ethics are vital to successful marriages.

It is of very little importance to the majority of our class to marry into money, though the group that finds this most important are the Liberal Arts men, 16% of whom feel it is very necessary that their wives be wealthy. 86% of the Jackson respondents, 53% of L. A. and 30% of the Engineers are looking for some financial security in their future mates.

Practically all our class feels the necessity for a sexually attractive marriage partner, but though the majority of the men want good-looking wives, this is an unimportant factor to 82% of the Jacksonites.

Nearly all of us want mates who are understanding of others. A large degree of social skill is important too, to about three-quarters of the L. A. and Jackson respondents, while the Engineers rate this as somewhat less necessary. Strength and self-sufficiency is important to some 97% of Jackson and more than three-fourths of the male respondents place a high value on this quality also.

We have reached the jumping-off place now and the background we absorbed at Tufts provides the momentum to propel us ahead. For though we have learned and developed here to the extent where nearly every one of us expresses confidence in our ability to adjust to whatever the future may demand, the growth process goes on and we must move forward with it.

How soon we forget the world that revolved about our miniature college world. This section is a kaleidoscope of the happenings, the fads, the personalities of this life around us during our four years at Tufts.

Beyond the Hill

When we entered Tufts in the fall of 1951 the Korean War was beginning its second year. The truce talks had been resumed, but some fierce fighting continued. Soldiers still bled and died, American casualties increasing 20,000 in two months, bringing the total by December well over the 100,000 mark.

However, with better rotation programs and the diminished fighting, more American boys were returning to the United States. But it was not a homecoming of band playing, cheering, dancing in the streets; it was rather like . . .

On the homefront, life was going on as usual, as this scene of some people waiting for a bus on a Pittsburgh corner depicts. The Korean conflict, which General Omar Bradley called "the wrong war, at the wrong place, at the wrong time, and with the wrong enemy," was having difficulty finding space in the nation's newspapers. America's mind was busy elsewhere. One of the cleanest diversions was the chlorophyll craze; soon everything from toothpaste to dog food had the green stuff in it.

Homes had to be furnished. Chairs, like the butterfly-type below in which Julie Harris is seated, reflect the striving for that compromise between casual comfort and modernistic styling.

Korea created no butter lines or ration stamps; Americans were as materially well-off as ever. And as assembly lines gushed television sets, people used their leisure viewing such new TV personalities as dynamic Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, who soon eclipsed "Uncle Miltie."

"Oh no, whass thees, Lucee?"

Another of the new and popular TV shows was I Love Lucy. Television particularly fit the styles of entertainers like songster Johnny Ray, who overnight cried his way to fame. The new medium grew rapidly more attractive in the early fifties, and like a vain and jealous mother, seeing her pretty and growing daughter stealing the whistles, Hollywood primped herself and announced that movies were better than ever.

And some of them were. The adaptation of Tennessee William's 1947 Broadway hit, A Streetcar Named Desire, was powerful (but not at the box-office) and gave Vivien Leigh an Oscar and Marlon Brando his first big chance to growl.

In An American in Paris Gene Kelly and Leslie Caron had rhythm and along with imaginative designing and a delightful Gershwin score built a stairway to the best-picture-of-1951 Oscar, the first for a musical.

In Washington outspoken Harry Truman was serving his last term as President, and his administration was busy fighting all sorts of scandal charges. Here he is shown with Eisenhower, who was only a general then. Across the seas dogged Winston Churchill defeated the Laborites, and to most Americans England was now herself again.

But what really excited Americans, next of course to Li'l Abner's and Daisey Mae's marriage, was the courage of Captain Henrik Carlsen who spent six lonely days in January, 1952, on his sinking ship, the Flying Enterprise.

The party conventions and election campaigns seem to some Americans to be democracy in action, but sadly to many others they are an opportunity to whoop up excitement in a rather jumbled contest

*. . . on a darkling plain,
Swept with confused alarms
of struggle and flight,
Where ignorant armies clash
by night.*

But TV helped Americans to better understand politics and conventions, and also brought, through the televised crime hearings, Senator Estes Kefauver into the battle as an early candidate.

Witty Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, was the darling of the intellectuals. In this now famous photograph he showed his utter disregard for material comfort.

The national conventions were as noisy and as hard-fighting as ever. "Mr. Republican" swallowed hard but reconciled himself (but not all his followers) to the Republican nominee.

The Republicans cried "It's time for a change." And change, things did, but not just in government. Brockton-born Rocky Marciano pulled the rocking chair out from under aging Jersey Joe Walcott to become the new heavy-weight champion. Rising new comedian, Jerry Lewis, made contortion humor, both facial and vocal, popular and had most Americans laughing. New shows flitted in and out of television, but one of the most eye-catching and enduring of the new programs was Jack Webb's Dragnet. Vocalists dominated the popular music field and new favorites like boyish Eddie Fisher (and even without a crew-cut!) wowed the teenagers.

"All we want are the facts, ma'am."

Hollywood, intending to lure back the audience that had been lost to little 17-inch TV screens, tried all sorts of technical tricks with pompous names like Cinemascope, panoramic vision, and stereophonic sound. The Cinerama picture did excite some of the public, but the series of 3-D films with hackneyed plots and pitiable acting only succeeded in turning theater crowds into something grotesque.

But cinemaland's best and most popular pictures were still the traditional "flats." On the left is a scene from the African Queen with Katherine Hepburn and Humphrey Bogart, who received an Oscar for his role. High Noon, starring Gary Cooper, tick-tocked its way to the top while its plaintive background ballad instantly became a popular hit song. Sentimentality for director Cecil B. de Mille, plus the biggest box-office gross since Gone With the Wind (and not much else), netted the best picture Oscar for the circus extravaganza, The Greatest Show On Earth. Below are pictured Betty Hutton, James Stewart, and some one of the other clowns in the film.

Paper-bound pocket books like those of Mickey Spillane were phenomenally successful, nearly 250 million copies being sold in the year 1952. But they were not all crime stories with lewd covers; even the Dialogues of Plato sold nearly 150,000 copies. In the hard-cover field two of the best-selling novels were the war stories, The Caine Mutiny by Herman Wouk, and From Here to Eternity by James Jones. And Americans with eager curiosity discovered just how unfaithful their mates might be in Kinsey's Sexual Behavior of the Human Female.

While Norman Vincent Peale and his book, Power of Positive Thinking, infused a new praying-can-be-profitable note into religion, the zealous evangelist, Billy Graham, ignited a hellfire under audiences all over the country and in his mission to London even shook the dignity-bound Archbishop of Canterbury a bit.

The obituary list of these years made more than small-town spinsters raise their eyebrows. The old Guard Republicans were decapitated and left heartless by the death of Bob Taft. The loss of King George VI reminded Britain of her own shivery hold on the world. Eugene O'Neill, America's greatest playwright, went Beyond the Horizon but his were Days Without End. The condemned spies, the Rosenbergs, were executed amidst a storm of criticism and debate but, it seems, were quickly forgotten. The Braves died, at least in Boston, but were resurrected by the fervid fans of Milwaukee, thus introducing a gradual shake-up in the major leagues. And behind the Iron Curtain pudgy Georgy Malenkov succeeded Joseph Stalin who had controlled Russia's 200 millions since the 1920's and with amazing selling techniques had created more millions of captive customers of Communism. But the Red Empire trembled uneasily with the change of rulers and the new dictator's grasp on the hammer and sickle was none too secure.

"Death of a Salesman"

Tenzing and Hillary reached the summit of majestic Mt. Everest in time to present the conquest as a coronation gift to Britain's lovely new queen, Elizabeth II.

The Far East had become a lot nearer to Americans. Many a GI brought home an adoring Asian wife. U. S. artists like sculptor Isamu Noguchi spanned the Pacific for their inspiration and achieved that pleasing Oriental quality of oneness and ease in their work. The Asia-conscious government sent Vice-President Nixon on a first-hand tour of the Far East. The Korean Armistice, concluded in the summer of 1953, eliminated one of the big hot spots in the cold war. The American reaction to the Panmunjom peace was probably best expressed by the photograph below of three tired and relieved marines when they heard the news.

"Time for a cigarette."

The dawning of the thermonuclear age, with its H-bomb whose lethal radioactive fallout could cover a cigar-shaped area of 7,000 square miles, put a premium on the ability of diplomats to keep the temperature low in the cold war.

No pictorial expression of the mood of the times could lack photographs of the awesome instruments of war. The United States to fortify its diplomacy and to be ready in case of a hot war rushed the development of new and expensive weapons, including supersonic jets; versatile helicopters, proving themselves by airlift miracles in Korea; complex Nike rockets with 1,500,000 parts; the atomic-powered submarine, the Nautilus, which could remain submerged indefinitely; and huge supercarriers, nearly four times the length of a football field.

Never had production been so high or prosperity so great. The stock market topped the previous peak of 1929; business expanded at a frantic pace; and rich farm lands produced evergrowing food surpluses. The picture below with the graphic line shows America's rising food yield since 1920. Although the government taxed heavily for defense spending and inflation cut into the purchasing power of the dollar, the American consumer during our college years was living on top of the world and, as the song says, just rollin' along. He had to roll; obesity was also at an all-time high.

Mass-selling techniques, such as the 44-store Shopper's World in Framingham, Mass., were designed to accommodate the avaricious and comfort-hunting public.

Americans wanted faster, more comfortable, and more beautiful cars, and the Detroit automakers did their best to please them. Greater horsepower, lower and sleeker lines, automatic power transmission, power steering, power brakes, and numerous other power-operated devices were offered to satisfy the megalomaniacal consumer. Shown to the left are the 1955 Cadillac and Plymouth.

For the first time in many years American-built sports cars rolled down our highways. Four feet high and 100 mph fast, Ford's streakish Thunderbird (below) was an all-steel, 3-passenger "personal car" listing for about $2700.

With nearly 60 million cars and trucks on the roads parking problems like the one pictured were a common municipal nightmare.

Our highway system panted heavily and fell far behind in the race with the tremendously increasing number of automobiles. But federal, state, and local governments finally lifted their heads, and throughways and cloverleafs began to spring up all over the country. Shown here is a photograph of the new high-speed central artery slicing a path through the narrow streets of Boston.

From coast to coast the country was building big. But not all were skyscrapers; single-story homes with huge picture windows sprouted in vast housing projects in this phenomenal building boom. One of the most interesting developments was the growth of prefabricated houses. In one hour a set of packing cases could be transformed into a charming new home, complete with a kitchen sink.

The scientific magic of the age was put to commercial and medical use as well as defense. Rubber was explosively created from butadiene gas; and thousands of youngsters were injected with the anti-polio virus vaccine developed by Dr. Salk.

How did the American of these prosperous years react to the expanding economy and greater material comforts? These cartoons portray some of the changes. Marketing became a family affair at numerous mass-consumption supermarkets which stayed open at night. Because of the high cost of labor and the great number of mechanized aids and gadgets, Americans were ensnared in a "do-it-yourself" trend and rivaled the log cabin builders of pioneer days in personal interest in their homes.

The excitement over interior decorating was part of this home-consciousness. The modern homes had more functional furnishings, more color, more informality, and more exotic materials; and one of the biggest fads was mobiles: suspended, oddly-shaped, delicately balanced contraptions of wood, metal, or plastic.

Men's basic garb was still a pair of pants and a coat but the most popular style seemed to be the Ivy League Look with the oxford grey, three button single-breasted suit, and striped tie. Shorter hair, bermuda shorts, and knee socks were popular fads among the girls on college campuses. Some men tried to cool their knees a bit too. The brief bikini was okay for the Riviera, but American females wanted a bathing suit that was functional as well as revealing.

To the amazement of some, America had her cultural side too. Young Evelyn Statsinger was one of the most honored of American abstractionists. Like all art, her work is difficult, perhaps impossible, to reproduce in non-color photographs; but it achieved a haunting mood of calm and mystery, although the inclusion of endless details gave it a textural appearance. Sculptor William King avoided the prevalent welded-steel monsters resembling giant insects and expressed a refreshing earthy touch in his work.

Stuart Davis said of his work: "I paint what I see in America."

Two of our most patriarchial and revered poets, New England's Robert Frost, 80, and the Midwest's Carl Sandburg, 76, were outrunning Father Time for the nation's benefit. But 87-year old Arturo Toscanini, the world's greatest performing musician of the day, after a thrilling final symphony and a legendary 68 years as a conductor finally stepped down from the podium.

In sport, Englishman Roger Bannister shattered the myth of the impossible four-minute mile by crossing the finish line in 3:59.4. The New York Yankees and Casey Stengel in 1954 lost the American League pennant race after five consecutive World Series championships. But at least the World Series crown stayed in the same city as the Giants defeated Cleveland in four straight games. The kids had their Lilliputian world of baseball too. Over a million Little Leaguers played each year on miniature diamonds with smaller but authentic equipment.

"Meow"

Cinemactress Marilyn Monroe with her exciting unspoken lines entertained the boys in Korea and then returned to purr a bit more for hubby, ex-Yankee outfielder Joe DiMaggio.

Exiled-King Farouk strode about the Riviera in all his royal splendor.

"Now, now, you must have more humility."

"I Want To Be Evil"

Lancaster and Clift

Americans in the mid-fifties had a full supply of worries and amusements to divert themselves. The Supreme Court by unanimous decision forbade segregation in schools, and thus ignited reaction in the South. Several medical reports on an apparent connection between smoking and lung cancer nearly scared the lives out of Americans but not the cigarettes out of their hands; those who were really terrified merely switched to king-sized or filter-tipped brands. One of the new techniques and names which caught the ears of the public (and their pocketbooks too) was Hi-Fi for high fidelity — the attempt to reproduce music exactly as it sounded in its natural setting. With the death of H. T. Webster, the creator of the Casper Milquetoast and inimitable bridge-playing cartoons, more and more people lost their enthusiasm for bridge and became spellbound by a new, rather intellectual game, Scrabble. Prices continued to rise slightly during these years, but two of the price jumps were unique, almost historic. Coffee reached a dollar a pound and the ten cent cup either had to be diluted or raised to fifteen cents; and now the penny post card cost two pennies. TV entertainer Arthur Godfrey landed on the front pages with the abrupt firing of his singer, Julius La Rosa. Talented songstress, Eartha Kitt, with her sexy voice shocked some people but delighted many more with such songs as Santa Baby and C'est Si Bon. The top movie of the year 1954 was Hollywood's version of Jones' novel, From Here to Eternity.

Leonard Carmichael, Tufts President during our freshman year, was doing fine in his new job as Secretary of the Smithsonian Institute, the nation's attic. Here he is shown with Mamie Eisenhower and the Queen-Mother in a tour of the Smithsonian.

Reds permeated the Republic, in schools, in defense plants, and in the government itself, or so charged several high officials. The years 1953-1954 perhaps saw the height of America's insecurity. A hooded defected Communist, Igor Gouzenko, testifying secretly before a congressional committee reflected the sickness of the age; and the mournful face of scientist Robert Oppenheimer told the story of its victims. But probably the culmination and the most ludicrous expression of the era of insecure feeling were the McCarthy-Army hearings. Below are photographs of Senator McCarthy flanked by his two aides, Frank Carr and Roy Cohn; and of committee counsel Jenkins and Army counsel Welch.

"My luck, she is running very good."

Although it never reached the top of the best-seller list (due maybe to its appearance in Life) Ernest Hemingway's The Old Man and the Sea was still one of the best books of the period. The novel, a fishing story in praise of man's courage and nobility of nature, was perhaps the quintessence of a rich and varied career (which included several near-death plane crashes in the jungle) and earned Ernest the Nobel prize for 1954.

Nature was a popular topic with Americans. The acclaim credited Life's nature series, the best selling non-fiction like Rachel Carson's The Sea Around Us, and Walt Disney's nature films like The Living Desert reflected peoples' interest in learning more about the natural world. The most dramatic and forceful teachers, at least to New Englanders, were the two hurricanes, Carol and Edna, which lashed the Atlantic coast and toppled Boston's Old North Church steeple.

Mendes-France, Adenauer, Eden, and Dulles in Paris, October, 1954

The world remained tense. The two goliaths still eyed each other anxiously from their corners, waiting for the bell to ring and hoping that it wouldn't. The fight, if it happened, would maybe destroy both antagonists and the ring with them; it was, as many felt, either co-existence or no existence.

As a battleground of words, the United Nations still offered an opportunity to release pent-up passions. Shown at the top are Ambassadors' Lodge and Vishinsky in one of their fiery verbal clashes with Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb caught in the middle per usual.

The most electrifying event in the foreign affairs of the mid-fifties was the rapid-fire activity of the audacious new French premier, Pierre Mendes-France. Vigorously, and probably realistically, he ended the unwinnable war in Indo-China; he seemed to infuse a new hope and vitality into Frenchmen that they had not had for years; EDC was killed, but he forced the French Assembly to agree to the rearmament of West Germany. Yet some of the vivacious statesman's measures like his colonial policy and his attempts to limit France's alcohol consumption in preference to his favorite beverage, milk, incited mounting hostility in France, and Mendes-France had few days left.

Mamboized songs were popular; but so were rhythm and blues numbers, especially by vocal groups, like the Crew-Cuts' nonsense hit, Sh-Boom:

*Hey nonny ding dong, a-lang, a-lang, a-lang . . .
Ya da da da da da da da da da.
Sh-boom, Sh-boom.*

But to modern jazz addicts the popular songs were a drag; instead they dug and flipped over such jazz hipsters as Dave Brubeck (above).

Painter Charles Sheeler in his Family Group portrayed the difficult balance between abstraction and realism. Yet his machine-like pictures were not the sort to move many people.

Boris Artzybasheff's paintings, like his Making of Steel: Charging the Open Hearth, were perhaps the best expression of a neurotic machine age.

Marion Anderson (right) made her debut in Verdi's Un Ballo in Maschera as the first Negro singer to appear at the Metropolitan Opera.

In Hollywood 3-D was dead, but the wide screen had caught the public fancy. The most hard-hitting and moving dramas, however, still needed no gimmicks. Marlon Brando effectively mumbled himself through a well-written but trite plot in On the Waterfront. Bing Crosby along with Grace Kelly in Country Girl (bottom right) turned out one of the finest performances of his career, rivaling his role in Going My Way.

Between her enchanting performance in Broadway's Ondine and her delightful role in Hollywood's Roman Holiday Audrey Hepburn (below) became perhaps the best, certainly the most charming, actress in the country. Her hair style was partially influential in popularizing the "Italian-boy" cut.

Movie-goers also saw an influx of foreign films with sultry foreign actresses. One of the most famous of these sirens was Gina Lollobrigida. No one could pronounce it, but she was pronounced enough so that it didn't seem to matter.

In television two new comedians, Jackie Gleason (below) and George Gobel (bottom right) skyrocketed to popularity. How long they could maintain their dom-inative clutch on Saturday night viewers was anyone's guess; it seemed that in this fickle field the only permanent thing was Ed Sullivan's Toast of the Town.

Liberace with his wavy golden locks, soft, milky voice, and candelabra (and incidentally his music) delighted the housewives of America.

Although harassed by Senator McCarthy, Ed Murrow with his TV program, See It Now, boldly dealt with some highly controversial but timely topics.

"And you don't hardly get that, no more."

Can any single picture sum up an age? Perhaps this prize winning photograph of a Korean orphan at least approximates the feelings of a troubled but hazily hopeful world. The boy looks up in bewilderment from the food which he can't quite comprehend. The future seems to look better; yet he cannot erase a fearful and disillusioning past. His is an anxious hope.

CLASS OF '55 HISTORY

From country and city and all over we gathered on the Tufts campus as Tufts began its centennial year and we were the largest class in its history. Orientation Week started us off on an organized program of a welcome by Prexy Carmichael, placement and aptitude tests, cookouts and their rain-outs, conferences with faculty advisors, curfews and sign-out rules for Jacksonites, rogue's gallery pictures in Cousens Gym complete to the numbers-under-chins, Doctor Carpenter's traditional lecture on Jumbo, Mayor Mooney's cut-ups.

Then the upperclassmen came back, took over, and regular college routine began. Registration's horrors impressed on some of us a healthy dread of that fine institution in semesters to come. Hazing began right away with beanies for the boys and green bows for the girls. A series of "firsts" began — a football rally, the opening game and a score we won't mention, the inauguration of AFROTC at Tufts, our Pretzel Night at the Arena Theater, our Traditions Dance — and can we ever forget Rena Civkin at the Jackson Baby Party, or how Sword and Shield President McMahon's paddle disappeared?

Homecoming that fall was rain-drenched. The varsity football team didn't win a game, but the frosh team came out undefeated and the frosh cross-country track team won the New England crown. Our first class officers were Charlie Devine and Nat Settimelli, Presidents, and — for the Tufts slate — Mike Pio, Vice President, Nat Rutter, Secretary, Paul Schick, Treasurer, and Dick Marshall, Marshal. Jackson's were Nancy Wood, Vice President, Sally Linscott, Secretary, Ann Temple, Treasurer, Rena Civkin, Marshal, and Barbara Cremer, Historian. And our own Dave Harrison was outstanding on the football varsity. With winter came our first final exam period and a lot of discussion on an honor system. Student Council was granted the responsibility for preventing and punishing violations of the honor code. Winter Carnival was not a bit unusual in its snowlessness. Wet sponges went flying at Coaches Ellis and Grimshaw, and Hizzoner the Mayor taught us a new drinking song that was eventually put in the Ivy Book. A few days later the snows came, the snow sculpture competition was on, and the DU's won with a cute Jumbo and an enormous birthday cake. Then there were Hell Week and snake charmers in the Statler lobby, our first class dance and Si Walker crooning "Tenderly."

With Spring and April First the Weekly announced Prexy Carmichael's PhD thesis a forgery. The next issue was no joke. Prexy was leaving Tufts January first to be Secretary of the Smithsonian Institute. Jackson's Dean Edith Bush announced her retirement and the appointment of Katharine Jeffers from William and Mary to succeed her. Don Perkins and Judy Webb were chosen our class presidents for the sophomore year; Mike Pio, Vice President, Nat Rutter, Secretary, Angie Bilionis, Treasurer, Ivan Enstrom, Marshal — and Ann Temple, Vice President, Mary Blair, Secretary, Patti Jameson, Treasurer, Rena Civkin, Marshal — were the other officers. Suddenly Mayoralty Campaign time had come, and the campus swarmed with movie stars, leprechauns, and Arabian dancing girls and foreign legions. Everyone put on spectacular shows, but Bo Jest Steve Toadvine won the day. Spring Sing and finals arrived and were left behind, and a huge Tufts' Centennial celebration began. It was in the Oval, a mammoth Centennial Pageant that re-lived the highlights of Tufts' first hundred years.

September — and we were upper classmen! Jackson had inaugurated a new freshman counseling system. The football team won its first game in a year and a half. But the Second Century Convocation with distinguished speakers like Vannevar Bush and an inspiring academic procession and a gala Ball was the greatest of all celebrations. There was a sensational auto-chase recovery of the Spring Sing trophy "stolen" from Davies House. The girls on our cheerleader squad replaced their slacks with skirts, we lost the Homecoming Rope Pull, and the U of Mass. game was televised — ugh! In the libe this notice was posted: "Lost, one plaid skirt last week in the library. If found please call Ma 4-1040."

Nils Wessell became the youngest college president in the U. S. when he took over here. At Christmas Sing the faculty got the bird when Professors Shapira and Carpenter won a live turkey for their fine singing. The Deans Jeffers and Emery team copped the consolation prize, a noisy hen. As the term drew to a close, we saw the end of the system of signing off and on for vacation, the organization of a men's Inter Dormitory Council, and the installation of washing machines in the dorms. More of our class members made news when Fran O'Brien starred in basketball, Bill Kearns co-directed "Come Back, Little Sheba," and Flicka Mezzacappa won the Greenwood Oratorical Prize. Another snowless Winter Carnival brought a prize for the best solution to the gigantic Kippie Beer Keg.

Then Spring was here again, and we lost the parking lot on the Res when they broke ground for Carmichael Hall. Vaughan Monroe came to the campus and was received by a monstrous turn-out of Tufts men and Jackson women. The free cigarettes were handy, too. April First came again, and this year a Tufts-Harvard merger was announced. The picture of John Harvard on good old Jumbo was charming, even though Harvard apparently didn't appreciate the combination. Most Important Basketball Player was John Heneghan, from our class. The DU Band was reactivated — better than ever, we heard tell — and the charms of Spring brought a note from Dean Jeffers to the Jacksonites about a biologist's versus a Dean's views on the public display of our tender emotions. The Chorus made history with the first public off-campus performance of any student organization when they sang at Jordan Hall. Lucky Pierre Murdock and Buccaneer Bob Meehan whooped through the Mayoralty Campaign, starred by a guillotining in Harvard Yard and a raid on the Swan Boats. Our class elected Don Perkins again and Nat Settimelli as Presidents. Charlie Antonacos, Vice President, John Danielson, Secretary, Angie Bilonis, Treasurer, Neil Jorgensen, Marshal, and Marcia Kaplan, Vice President, Joy Roberts, Secretary, Patti Jameson, Treasurer, Louise Goss, Marshal, made up the rest of the officer staff.

And so we returned for our third year. Judy Webb had won the Women's National Sailing Championship in August, and Metcalf Cafeteria had new draperies and management. There was also no Mayor Murdock. Mayor's Council made a few attempts at fun on the football field, but the Du Band had the lime-light all the way — especially at the U of Mass game when they cavorted with the ROTC drill teams. And lo and behold, the varsity football team was picking up more victories every year!

We held mass class meetings now, and talked over plans as real upperclassmen should. Our Junior Jazz Concert before Thanksgiving vacation was a big success. Three P's put on their first musical in several years with "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" — a smash hit that starred a Junior transfer, Bev Callow, as Sandy. The Junior Dinner Dance at the Continental with pot roast and a congenial singing trio was great fun. The Weekly on April First put out a big Mayoralty Preview of surprise splashes on "Elliot the King" news. When the real thing came along, though, Mayoralty had only two candidates, Viva Zapata Marty Katz and PT Barnum — the winnah — Bucky Spurr campaigning it out. It seemed in the swing of things to have a mayor around again — and one with lots of spirit who started the Barnum Chorus as a regular group on campus. Building plans were really underway on campus, too, as well as lots of remodeling. Carmichael would be the central dining hall, Hodgdon would be a consolidated Jackson women's dorm after several of the small dorms were taken over by Nursery Training School and BSOT, the Alumnae Hall and Cohen Auditorium would be attached to Jackson Gym, the Kursaal would be moved to Curtis, Electrical Engineering would take the old Kursaal, and Metcalf East's and Stratton's dining rooms would be transformed. Junior Weekend came along nicely in a gay time of Jackson Junior Jackets, the Prom and Billie May, and a crazy Jazz Concert. Spring Sing provided outside entertainment — a Simmons Quartet and the "Boston Beguine." And so after finals our Junior year ended, with Senior officers Lou Resteghini, President, Fran O'Brien, Vice President, John Danielson, Secretary, Ed Parks, Treasurer, Neil Jorgensen, Marshal, and Pat Dodge, President, Marcia Kaplan, Vice President, Joy Roberts, Secretary, Barbie Holly, Treasurer, Louise Goss, Marshal — and ideas for Senior Activities like school-song records, a Jackson recipe book, a yearbook headed by Nat Settimelli: the first woman Jumbo Book editor at Tufts, and a class ski weekend and Big Name Doings for our Senior Year. OUR SENIOR YEAR was it possible?

Senior Week

"Spring on the Hill" to Seniors brings with the anticipation of the new, nostalgia for the old — last classes, finals with cramming between bridge games and trips to Crane's Beach, the Tufts-Jackson Banquet — culminated by Senior Week and Commencement.

The official beginning of Senior Week was marked by Baccalaureate Services the Sunday before graduation. Under the planning of Tufts and Jackson Class Officers and the Senior Activities Committee, the seniors went through all types of Activities and moods from the romantic moonlight cruise on the Boston Belle (with no cares about 12:15's) from the music of the Boston Pops, conducted by Arthur Fiedler Class Day, with the Senior Spread on the President's lawn, the humorous tree orations and class skit the gala, Senior Prom at the Sheraton Plaza Alumni Day to the climax of our four eventful years at Tufts, Commencement.

The Tufts Year

Recent college graduates smile in a lordly and superior way when they think of the great question, the awesome election that high school seniors talk about. The election of course is — which college should be mine? And what shall that college be like when I do finally become an undergraduate? At seventeen these are questions which seem more immediate, more terrible and wonderful in their implications, than the choice for president of the republic that older brothers must make at twenty-one. What happens in the four years between the two elections — the chance to elect a college at seventeen and the chance to elect a president at twenty-one?

In the pages that follow this introduction there are a collection of pictures of the things we did in those four years. A college senior cannot always easily break down his college years. Each one seems very neatly and slyly to have slipped into the other. The four years are indeed one year. The only demarcation we can really make is that something took place between that frightened and hopeful September when we entered as freshmen and that solemn and wondering June when we left as college graduates.

The yearbook staff have decided to arrange a camera gallery of the more flamboyant things we did, things which are characteristic parts of Tufts tradition . . . the perennial freshman pray-for-rain, the ever-colorful and grandly mad mayoralty campaign, and that consistent Tufts paradox, the snowless winter carnival . . . and to contrast these with the prosaic and humdrum things that were also part of our college experience . . . a Gordon supply truck on its weekly trek, a girl tanning her legs on the steps of Stratton on a May afternoon, the inevitable student asleep in the library during the exam period in June, and that rarest of wonders — the class that actually got to meet outdoors.

We have let the habits of the equinox decide the pattern of our revue of the Tufts year. We have not felt it necessary to work for any special effects, or any simulated order. These pictures are arranged in the casual and familiar manner of the family scrapbook. The only task for you, the member of the class of '55, is to do what members of families have always done in perusing their scrapbooks — look carefully and perhaps even respectfully at each picture because in many a picture you will find yourself.

We introduce you then to the things you did. We have taken flashbulbs and placed your memories in lights. Welcome to the Tufts year.

SPRING SING

The crowd on Miner lawn last spring heard Metcalf West, singing "I Love Little Willie" directed by Jean O'Brien, and Zeta Psi, singing "Climbing Up the Mountain" led by Charles Paskerian win the 1954 Spring Sing placques. The Simmons "Bluettes" and the Tufts Brass Choir sang and played during intermission. Second places were taken by Richardson and ATO, and third by Paige and Sigma Nu.

And they say this doesn't happen!

YACHT CLUB WEEKEND

The Tufts Yacht Club outing was held on the weekend of May 8th. Plans included an outdoor supper, dancing, and moonlight sailing on Saturday night; and intramural regattas for both Jackson and Tufts on Sunday. Rainy weather forced the group to move their party inside the club house but didn't succeed in dampening the spirits of club members.

MAYORALTY 1954

Mayoralty started apprehensively last year but ended as a high-spirited, fiercely competitive, and well-battled campaign which saw Bucky "P. T. Barnum" Spurr of the Thetes win over Marty "Zapata" Katz, A E Pi.

There had been early trouble over candidates and support but it finally settled into a five-four fraternity split. "Work" parties began April 15th and the Big Show was May 6th.

Bucky's campaign naturally centered around the Circus and for the between-class skits he had his troupe performing as all kinds of circus characters, and beside the balloons, pop corn and cotton candy, Bucky, in plaid jacket and cigar, rode atop the replica of Jumbo. The skits between classes included juggling and tumbling, clowns, a freak show and a menagerie on parade. Bucky's Big Show was his circus which included a professional magician and a fire swallower.

Marty Katz, as the Mexican revolt leader Zapata, led his "Zapatistas" through raids, fiestas, and a whole pitched battle for the Miner-Paige archway. At the crowded poster parties paint and liquid refreshment flowed equally, while upstairs rehearsals went on for the skits and Big Show, "Zapata's Wedding Celebration", the high spot being Marty's dancing an authentic flamenco.

The traditional parade on Thursday afternoon though damp was highly colorful, with Marty's Mexican floats followed by Bucky's circus; and at the very end, those "Dark Horse" characters who had mystified the campus for two days.

The general store

Tufts has produced its first published collection of poetry by five undergraduates. An immediate success, the book, Five New Poets, contains some fifty poems by Dawes Chillman, Neil Olson ('54), Myra Weisberg, Richard McGrath and Jerome Barron.

NROTC and AFROTC again heralded Spring 1954 with their annual balls held in Cousens and Jackson gym. The Air Force treated the dancers to Jerry Benard and his orchestra, who also contributed an informal jam session during the intermission.

Ultraviolet rays at Tufts

Blood Day again arrived on Hill last spring. Close to one hundred Tufts and Jackson students kept their appointments with the Red Cross at Jackson Gym to give a pint of blood.

Although sun worshipping is not an officially recognized activity on campus, when the temperature soars above 70, the Hill and its surroundings blossom forth with students bent on a) getting a tan, b) studying in the open air, or c) just goofing.

Junior Prom

THE QUEEN AND HER COURT

Carol Grinwin, Flicka Mezzacappa, Donna Cook, Joy Roberts, Mary Jane Coughlin, Rosemarie Daghlian, and Joyce Scott.

Parents' Day at Jackson, an innovation last year, was May 15th. Approximately four hundred parents went to their daughters' classes, a buffet lunch, and a special show in the afternoon. In October, Tufts also had Parents' Day which included an open house at Carmichael.

JUNIOR WEEKEND

Junior Weekend, April 30-May 2, 1954, started off with the Prom. Cousens Gym was decorated with masses of roses on arbors and fences as 275 couples danced to the music of Billy May's orchestra. Junior Joy Roberts was crowned Queen by Vice-President Tilton; her court included Donna Cook (Bouve), Mary Jane Coughlin, Rosemarie Daghlain, Carol Grinwin (Bouve), Flicka Mezzacappa (J '54), and Joyce Scott. Saturday morning the extra-curricular awards and all-College election results were announced by the marshals of the Junior class at the Junior Day chapel ceremony. That afternoon the Ivy Society played softball with the faculty and won 13-8, and that night the K. of C. hall at Hillside rocked to a free beer-inspired jazz concert with music by Buzz McKee's Brunotes from Brown. A cook-out at Crane's Beach was scheduled for Sunday but rain cancelled it, so the Kippies opened their Cave.

Hodgdon Hall

Sweet Hall

Summer

The year 1954-1955 will be remembered by the whole college as Expansion Year. This was the year that four new buildings were added to the campus and Curtis Hall's first floor and "Pine Room" were made into the new Kursaal.

By far the most significant additions are the new men's dorm, Carmichael Hall and the women's dorm, Hodgdon Hall. Ground was broken for Carmichael on March 6, 1953 and it was completed in 1954. Built to house 280 Tufts men, it has provided more rooms for students wishing to live on Hill, since none of the other men's dorms have been closed. Hodgdon, begun on December 15, 1953 and completed early this fall, houses 150 Jackson girls, but there is not a great increase in on-Hill girls since several of the small dorms (Wade, Wyeth and Graves now house N. T. S. students; Bouve has Sawyer, and Anthony is now the home of Dean Stearns) have been closed. Cafeteria arrangements in connection with the new dorms were also changed. Carmichael is the main kitchen. The men living in the dorms and the girls of the Special Studies divisions eat there now, while Jackson girls eat at Hodgdon and Stratton.

Sweet Hall, the new combined ROTC building on Boston Ave., was completed last year, and the units moved immediately from their former locations in Cousens. The building contains both classrooms and offices and is in constant use.

Another building completed this March is Jackson Alumnae Hall and Cohen Auditorium. Located on Talbot Ave., the Alumnae Hall is connected to Jackson Gym by a long corridor. It includes a kitchen, storage facilities, and a back terrace. The Lounge was planned for teas, meetings and general relaxation. Cohen Auditorium is also a part of this bloc. Containing a proscenium stage and having a seating capacity of 800, the Auditorium, named for philanthropist Edward Elias Cohen, has already been used for the 3 P's musical. The Music and Fine Arts departments were moved into the building as well.

These long awaited additions to the Tufts campus have caused considerable comment, including approval, disappointment and wonder. But all these things took a back seat when suddenly and devastatingly Mother Nature took over for a violent week late last August

"Carol" and "Edna", two of the fiercest hurricanes to hit this country, and especially the East Coast, struck the Hill and its surroundings with an almighty force, ripping off roofs, breaking windows, and uprooting and overturning more than 30 trees on the Hill itself. Unofficial estimates of the damage came to $100,000; it was that much because the Hill is much higher than most of the Boston area, thus sustaining stronger winds and harder rains.

Maintenance started repairs immediately, which curtailed work on the new dorms and Cohen, delaying their completion for several weeks. The skylights of Cousens have been slated over and East Hall's slate roof has been asphalt tiled. An irreplaceable toll was taken of the trees. Many valuable giants, including that of the class of 1878, were literally ripped from the ground and thrown in grotesque positions. In Robinson Hall a major power line was cut and shorted, causing an explosion, and in Miner a janitor just escaped a falling stairway window.

Fall

Fall means football. The thrill of a winning season this year was further highlighted by the Homecoming game, watched by more than 700 cheering alumni, who saw the dedication of Carmichael Hall with Tufts' ex-president unveiling a portrait of himself in a ceremony conducted by President Wessell. Trophies were then awarded for Homecoming displays to Hodgdon and East Halls.

Fall also means the traditional hazing of the freshmen, carried out with intensity and spirit by the class of '57 and their "victims." Tufts frosh wore their beanies, carried their Ivy Books, prayed for rain and pulled a few pranks of their own, winning the annual Tug O'War; while Jacksonites went costumed and make-up-less with their signs and green bows for a week. The girls' hazing included a Bunny Hop at half time during the Wesleyan game and was ended by the annual Baby Party.

Freshman Orientation, a necessary and valuable tradition, was livened up this year by the Mayor's Night Show, presented by Bucky and his Council. Included was the Delt's "John Brown's Body" skit, circus refreshments, jazz, and a touch of Bucky's magic.

I. F. C. Ball

Ancient Greece was the appropriate setting for this year's annual Interfraternity Council Ball, held in Cousens on November 5th. Freddy Sateriale and orchestra played in the replica of a Greek temple while statues, warriors and chariots, a fire altar, and the temple of the Queen completed the Grecian atmosphere. This year Sigma Nu repeated its 1953 victory in having its candidate, Jackson soph Sadie Morrill, crowned queen by IFC President Dick Goguen. In the queen's court were: Judy Burling (Kippie), Jackie Drouin (Thete), Mary Goodrich (DU), Barbara Holly (ATO), Bobbie Kaufman (AEPi), Nancy Middleton (Zete), Nancy Sulkin (PhiEp), and Emily Warren (Delt).

SARA MORRILL, QUEEN

Jackson's Pan Hellenic Council began its social year with the annual Pan Hellenic semi-formal, the Pumpkin Promenade. Couples danced in Halloween-inspired Cousens gym to the music of George Graham and his orchestra. Witches, ghosts and jack-o-lanterns leered from the walls accompanied by straw stuffed dummies in sorority sweat-shirts.

Pan Hellenic president Rosie Frankfort welcomed freshmen and transfers at the annual tea in Jackson lounge, held this year on November 3rd. Its purpose is to formally introduce the new students to the sorority girls and it is the official beginning of rushing for the fall.

Jackson students welcomed Miss Marguerite Wynne-Roberts by holding a tea in her honor in Jackson Lounge. Miss Wynne-Roberts is new to this campus having come from William and Mary College to assume the new positions of assistant dean and head resident of Hodgdon Hall for Jackson College.

The annual Foreign Students Tea was held this year on October 21 in the Jackson Gym Lounge. Most of these students have been sent here by their governments for a year's study after which they will work in their country's foreign service departments. Others come here for a regular four year Liberal Arts or Science education, many planning to go on to graduate school.

On December 1, Robert Frost again visited Tufts at the invitation of Middle Hall. Speaking to a crowded chapel he assured us:

"I have a watch in my pocket that I don't change for every clock it doesn't agree with."

INDOOR SPORT

At any dorm, telephoning is one of the top activities, second only to Bull Sessions. In this respect, Hodgdon Hall is no different — the two phones are perpetually busy with “on your own floor” or, as in the case of the picture, “at the desk” calls. The latter cannot be switched upstairs so the girls have invented their own semi-private phone booth in (or under) which they can carry on this favorite year round indoor sport.

3P'S

Pen, Paint, and Pretzels, Tufts' oldest undergraduate society, celebrated its forty-fifth anniversary with an unusually varied selection of productions, the first being their annual "Pretzel Night" show for the freshmen. This show is written, directed, and produced by the members and cohorts of 3P's. This year's show, was written by Lois Epstein and Rosie Frankfort and was prompted by the Tufts movie that has been in process this year. It was, as usual, a take-off on campus life. Some of the funnier scenes were registration and freshman chapel.

The first serious production was Jean-Paul Sartre's grim protest play in the form of a Greek tragedy, "The Flies". It starred Sydney Turner, Vilma deVellis, and Dixie Hoshall (the latter two newcomers), and several votive urns. The play will be remembered for its beautiful costumes and staging.

Next came Oscar Wilde's farce, "The Importance of Being Earnest" and starred Fred Blish, Gardner Tillson, Jackie Zollo, and Otto Ashermann. The latter was the director who molded it into a successful and well enjoyed whole.

Because of time and dat ole debbil money, 3P's had to be satisfied with one more presentation, its fabulous musical "Lady in the Dark" by Moss Hart. Entirely student directed and produced (Bill Kearns) and acted (Lois Epstein, Philip Coburn, Fred Blish, Mike Fortman, Stuart Townsend), the show was a colorful success and opened Cohen Auditorium to the student body with a bang. A difficult show to do, as it is a combination of a psychological drama and a musical comedy, it was as good a show as has been put on in recent years.

3P's itself is a serious institution, membership in which — signified by a 3P's key — is a sought-after thing. But then there are those famous strike parties after the last performance of each play with a parody of the show, jazz, and the general enjoyment which makes theatre so much a part of all those who work at it.

3 P's banquet

. . . and then there was Christmas.

ACADEMIC HONORS

An annual tradition at Tufts is the Academic awards program, this year held on November 3rd in Goddard Chapel. After the faculty processional, the Tufts-Jackson Chorus sang and the invocation was delivered by Dean Ashton. Sixty students were honored, either singly or in groups, as President Wessell read their names: Donald Perkins and Natalie Settimelli were awarded the 1911 Prize Scholarships while Alpha Epsilon Pi and Alpha Xi Delta received the scholastic achievement awards for fraternities and sororities. A few new awards were added this year: manufacturing firms' awards, the biology honor society, Sigma Xi, award and another biology award named for Anna Quimby Churchill.

Winners of this year's Greenwood Prize for oral interpretation were Joan Lake and Fred Blish.

DORM LIFE

Dorm life is one part of college which includes and influences most of us at some time during our four years. The people you come in contact with through bull sessions (where boys talk about girls and other people and girls talk about other people and boys), playing cards, singing or listening to someone's radio two rooms down, getting ready for the Big Date, and just goofing. Sometimes it's a small dorm with a close group all sharing their books and problems; or sometimes it's that group in a large dorm. Whatever the situation, the experience is a unique, often trying one, and we cannot leave without being altered by the happenings here.

Robin Gordon being crowned Carnival Queen

WINTER CARNIVAL 1955

Winter Carnival this year lasted four days — from February 11 to 14. Skit night, with Jack Peckham as M. C., was first, with all the fraternities and sororities competing, plus a faculty skit. The Carnival Ball was held on Friday night in Cousens. Hal Taylor and Roe Daghliah, dance and decoration chairmen, had the Jesse Smith orchestra plus the Four Grads vocal group for dancing in a winter and Valetine theme-decorated gym. At intermission Mayor Bucky Spurr crowned Jackson freshman Robin Gordon Queen. Her court consisted of Roe Daghliah, Barbara Kelley, Mary Goodrich, Dianne Haeusler, Janet Vinburg, and Jackie Gosney. The co-winners of the "Ugly Man" contest — created to raise money for the Campus Community Chest fund — were announced as Lenny Mintz, AEPi, and Norm Marieb, Thete. The skit winners, Alpha Xi Delta and Zeta Psi, were also announced.

Saturday afternoon and evening the Cage Carnival was in full swing with booths from sororities, fraternities, Bouve, Varsity Club, and Mayor's Council. During the afternoon there was a "ringside show" set up by Bucky which included a juggler, a cartoonist, a magician, a Delt quartet, and others. That night Tufts and Springfield played a tight and spirited game to a packed gym (the latter won), and an informal Sock Hop followed; the booths stayed open until 11:00 p. m. Sunday afternoon Carnival came to a lively end to the jazz of LeRoy Parkins and his Excalibur Jazz band who played at the Kursaal. No snow sculpture this year, either.

And then there was the Ugly Man

TUFTS STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council concerns itself with all student life and activities. Its membership includes students from Tufts, Jackson, and Bouve, and plans have been made to receive other affiliated schools. The mayor, representing each of us, was made a voting member. Also, for the first time, standing committees included non-council students.

This year, the Council supervised Freshmen Orientation, approved the Barnum Chorus Constitution, and helped draw up the IDC visiting hours in male dormitories. It also organized a week of coordinated Charity Drives, set up a new date book system for all college events, expanded the list of Class "A" dances, and aided in establishing Curtis Hall as a start toward a Student Union by adding ping-pong facilities, meeting rooms, and extended Kursaal hours.

In its activities, more integration between the administration and students was achieved. Council recommendations were considered and nearly always acted upon, for they were indicative of student opinion. With the aid of its advisor, Dean Emery, the Council shall continue to work with the administration for the student body.

JACKSON STUDENT COUNCIL

The major purpose of the Jackson Student Council, according to its preamble, is to promote the welfare and interest of all Jackson students. This year's Council undertook a number of activities designed to advance this purpose. A completely revised constitution, a new representation system to accommodate large dorms, and the setting up of publicity and election commissions were several of its innovations.

One of the most successful undertakings of the Council was its sponsorship of a Homecoming display contest to which the dorms and fraternities enthusiastically responded. For the incoming freshmen, the orientation program was conducted in cooperation with Tufts Council. Continuing its good relations with other divisions of Tufts, a women's inter-school council was set up, including Bouve, Forsyth, NTS and BSOT, with the purpose of discussing mutual school problems.

Other activities of the Council included maintenance of a summer job file, sponsorship of a quartet competition and support of a Greek war orphan. As usual, the Council continued to be a sounding board for various student problems.

TOWER CROSS

Membership in Tower Cross is considered one of the highest honors that can be accorded an undergraduate. The Society was founded in 1897 and has functioned every year since then. Its members, ten of them, are nominated by the members of their class in the annual all-college elections. In its early years, Tower Cross was the only group of undergraduate control and supervision, but many of its ever-expanding duties were eventually shifted to the Student Council. In the past year, besides running the important rallies for our football team, Tower Cross conducted the competition for cheerleaders, ran Tufts Night, and ran the Christmas and Spring Sings. The Society, this year, also investigated the Athletic Association as far as student membership was concerned. They also were instrumental in the success of Class Day.

IVY SOCIETY

The Ivy Society is a Junior Class honorary group consisting of ten members, elected by their class. This year, Ivy assisted the faculty in many ways during the Russell Lectures, Academic Honors, and the organization of a community charity drive.

SWORD AND SHIELD

The Sword and Shield is the Sophomore Honorary Society. The twelve members of the Society welcome all visitors, present the annual Traditions Dance, and enforce Freshman Traditions.

This year a complete Freshman weekend was planned which offered the '58's their first introduction to college life.

SENIOR CLASS

What has the Senior Class been up to this year? Well, the biggest affair was the Mid-Winter Dance, the "Snow Ball," at the Somerset Hotel in January. The Class turned out in full at the Louis XIVth Ballroom for a wonderful evening of dancing, socializing and entertainment by Mayor Bucky at intermission-time.

In February we sponsored a winter weekend in North Conway, hired the Timberline Inn and moved in en masse for three days. Those who didn't ski, skated; those who did neither had a tremendous time relaxing in front of the huge fireplace with hot toddy in hand.

Jackson, besides having informal social hours, sold food among the dorms, held a Career Night at Jackson Gym, put on the annual Senior Fashion Show in the Spring, and had a get-together with the Sophomore Class.

The Activities Committee for both Tufts and Jackson did a fine job in organizing and carrying through these things, and our Senior Week in June will be the best ever, thanks to their good work!

JUNIOR CLASS

The Tufts and Jackson Junior Classes began the year with a tremendously successful Spaghetti Supper and Jazz Concert held late in November. The Dukes of Dixie were the popular jazz band featured in the concert.

Their initial success was followed by the Junior Dinner Dance in February. This year it was held in the Louis XIV Ballroom in the Hotel Somerset. Tony Barrie furnished dinner and dance music for this event.

The last social event of the year was Junior Weekend in May. This included the Junior Prom, Junior Day activities, and a beach party.

The Junior Class of Jackson got the year underway before classes started with a Big-Little Sister breakfast held behind Jackson Gym. The following weekend the traditional Big-Little Sister picnic was held at Nahant Beach. Later in the year they gave a bridge and punch party for all new transfers in the new Hodgdon Lounge. The Junior girls also took children from the Nazareth Home in Jamaica Plain to a Christmas play in Boston. Finally Junior Day came in May when all the girls dressed in their new white blazers.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

September came and the class of 1957 assumed their role as the all-knowing Sophomores; they saw to it that the Tuft's frosh wore their beanies and carried their Ivy books. October brought a mixture of green bows, a baby party, and rain (that is to say, "Pray for Rain"). Following these came the other traditions: a rope pull, the bunny-hop, and the Sword and Shield Traditions Dance.

In November the Sophomores did their part to make Homecoming more successful by sponsoring a Block Dance in the intramural gym; the proceeds were used for new uniforms for the cheerleaders.

The Jaxonites had a spaghetti dinner at de Pasquale's, where they also discussed sophomore activities for the remainder of the year.

The "Ski Holiday" at Jaffrey, New Hampshire was by far the outstanding activity of the year. They skated, tobogganed, and a few braver enthusiasts even did some skiing.

Spring soon came and the activities were those of a slightly different nature. They had an "egg hunt" and Easter Party for the local orphans and ran another Block Dance, but this time it moved out to the Jackson Tennis Courts.

FRESHMAN CLASS

Along with the many spring activities to keep the freshman busy was the "Bunny Hop", April first, sponsored by the Tufts and Jackson Freshman class. Along with the planning and running of the dance, the members of the various committees were initiated in how a major campus activity is successfully run.

Both Easter and April Fool's Day provided an excellent setting for a theme and decorations. Refreshments consisted of unique cookies and punch.

Later on in the spring a beach party sponsored by the Freshman class was held at Crane's Beach. Most of the activity consisted of games on the beach with the exception of a few polar bear swimmers. Perhaps the most fun of the day was the softball game of Guys vs. Gals. Hotdogs cooked over huge bonfires satisfied the appetites of the beach enthusiasts and they returned to the campus tired but happy, looking forward to finals for the second time.

PHI BETA KAPPA

For over a century and a half, election to Phi Beta Kappa has been a recognition of intellectual achievements in the liberal arts and sciences. The Delta chapter of Tufts College was founded in 1892. In the spring and fall of each year, members are elected from leading students of the junior and senior classes of the School of Liberal Arts and Jackson College. At the initiation ceremony, the new members were presented their keys, and a dinner was held at which Professor Burch gave a stimulating analysis of the effects of ancient languages on Western civilization. He speculated that our next renaissance will be based on the Sanskrit language.

TAU BETA PI

The Tufts chapter of Tau Beta Pi, Delta of Massachusetts, is one of some ninety "Tau Bete" chapters in engineering schools throughout the United States. Tau Beta Pi is an engineering honor society, selecting its members primarily on the basis of academic achievement. Integrity, breadth of interest, both inside and outside of engineering, adaptability, and unselfish activity are also considered necessary for election to membership.

It is the purpose of Tau Beta Pi to do more than simply recognize high scholastic achievement. Worthwhile projects are taken on from time to time in order to make the organization a factor in campus activity.

In two important ways the Tufts chapter, during the 1954-55 school year, carried out its obligations to the College. Slide rule classes for freshmen were held once a week for six weeks during the winter. Introducing the engineers to the facts of professional registration was a project undertaken in the spring.

But we must meet the deadline!

TUFTS WEEKLY

News and pictures of the latest campus developments plus features on interesting college personalities are presented by the Tufts WEEKLY.

This completely student-run publication offers experience in gathering and editing news to all interested students. The publication is free from all censorship. Besides the actual writing, the students make their own Dummies, write headlines, and assist the men of the College Press in many of the technical aspects of publishing.

A typical week at the WEEKLY begins Monday when "copy" begins arriving at the office. The stories are then headlined and checked for accuracy. The material is then linotyped and proofs are taken of the "galleys". Next, the type and picture "cuts" are placed in the forms and locked up. From here, "page proofs" are taken and then the final "press proof". The final deadline for publications is Thursday afternoon.

The WEEKLY is published 13 times a semester. The editors for 1954-1955 were: Herbert Goodwin and Donald Nelson.

SIGMA PI SIGMA

Sigma Pi Sigma, the national physics honor society, serves as a means of awarding distinction to students having high scholarship and promise of achievement in physics. Also, it promotes student interest in research and in the advanced study of physics. The Tufts chapter has endeavored to popularize an interest in physics in the general collegiate public.

The chapter held open meetings which were addressed by nationally recognized speakers. Last semester, the society sponsored a symposium on microwave research which was attended by physicists from all over the nation.

ALPHA KAPPA DELTA

Alpha Kappa Delta, sociology honor society, was established nationally in 1920 and is open to undergraduate students with high scholastic standing. Its purpose is to promote an interest in social problems and activities leading to human welfare.

The Tufts Chapter was established in 1954 and since then has become increasingly active. Among the problems of bimonthly meetings have been films, slide lectures, and reports on research projects. Also, the society sponsored many exhibits which were open to the college community.

Epstein, Roberts, Colby, Eisgrau, Bernstein, Greenwood.

LAMBERT-KINGSLEY SOCIETY

The Society has been organized to promote fellowship among its members, to stimulate research, and to provide a forum for the presentation and discussion of original work in biological sciences. Election to the society depends on excellence and interest in biology.

One of the most important contributions the Society made in the past year was the presentation of the Biology Open House. This annual affair in April helped to show the student body and students from New England high schools what is being done in biology at Tufts.

PSI CHI

The purpose of Psi Chi is to further psychology to stimulate interest on the part of psychology majors, and to acquaint others with this science.

The Psi Chi sponsored several movies such as the "Quiet One" which were open to the entire student body. Also, a panel of speakers spoke on occupational opportunities. The group visited many high schools in this area so that seniors could have a chance to talk with Psi Chi members about becoming psychology majors. In the spring, the annual open house proved to be a great success.

TUFTS ENGINEERS' COUNCIL

The Tufts Engineers' Council was originated in 1947 by the honorary engineering society Tau Beta Pi for the purpose of providing and coordinating social and educational ambitions of engineering students.

For the promotion of "Engineering Week" during the week of February 20, the Council presented a panel discussion on "Regional Industrial Development and its Effect on Future Employment".

Open House came back again after a year's furlough. Absence, however, did not dim in the least the keen competitive spirit between the engineering departments.

To wind up the year, the Council in connection with the Engineering Societies conducted the Annual All Engineers' Smoker.

A.S.C.E.

The Tufts College Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers is a junior branch of the National American Society of Civil Engineers. The faculty advisor is Professor Rice.

The purpose of the meetings is to acquaint the student civil engineer with practical and current engineering and the business world. Speakers are usually from an engineering firm or a business or industry employing civil engineers.

Field trips are made when interest is aroused by a special project or industry. This year the society visited the Shepaug Dam in Connecticut.

Corsino, Vice Pres.; Harrison, Treas.; Cook, Sec'y.; Barbuto, Pres.; Blake.

A.S.M.E.

The purpose of the Student Branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers is to introduce the student to the activities and facilities of the parent society. The Society participates in such things as the annual student conference at which papers are presented, and the engineering Open House. At the monthly meetings, this year, movies or speakers on topics of current interest in engineering were presented.

Bryant, Pres.; Cocivera, Querker, Sec'y.; Lovejoy, Allen.

A.I.C.H.E.

The Tufts Chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers was organized in 1940. The aim of the chapter is to provide speakers from the chemical or allied fields and to make trips to manufacturing plants to further practical knowledge of engineering.

Membership is open to anyone interested in chemical engineering. The business of the A. I. Ch. E. is carried on by an executive council with the aid of its faculty advisor, Mr. Pavelchek.

Besides the regular monthly meetings, field trips, and an annual Christmas party, the A. I. Ch. E. participated in the Engineering Open House and the Engineering Smoker.

Coveney, Sec'y.; Stengle, Vice-Pres.; Montesi, Clark, Pres.

AIEE-IRE

The purpose of the Tufts College Joint Student Chapter of the AIEE-IRE is to acquaint Electrical Engineering students with the latest professional and technical developments in their selected field.

Meetings were held monthly at which prominent speakers presented discussions on electronic computers, transistor applications and color television. In the spring, field trips were taken to nearby power stations and electronics manufacturing plants to correlate theory and accepted practices.

The Tufts Chapter was well represented at the Annual IRE Convention in New York City.

TUFTS-JACKSON CHORUS

One of the most active music groups on the campus has been the Tufts-Jackson Chorus. With a membership of about one hundred voices, this organization presented several programs of classical and semi-classical music during the 1954-55 season.

In addition to a Christmas concert and a Spring concert, this group performed at Tufts Night at the Pops in Symphony Hall in June and two informal concerts with M. I. T. and Simmons College. Other off-hill appearances help add money to the scholarship fund for members of the chorus who are majoring in music.

BARNUM CHORUS

The Barnum Chorus was organized during "Bucky" Spurr's mayoralty campaign in 1954. They sang on several occasions during mayoralty and they appeared in the late spring of that year. The student body was very enthused over this group and the interest carried over to the fall, when the Barnum Chorus was made an official college organization.

Its purpose is for the enjoyment of those who like to sing semi-classical and "lighter" music. In addition to singing in the Mayor's show, Homecoming and for the Intercollegiate Debate Program, the Chorus sang for Xmas Sing, Winter Carnival, and Spring Sing and other occasions that arose.

TUFTS COLLEGE BAND

The Band is comprised of students from Tufts, Jackson and the affiliated schools. It is governed by a Band Committee elected each year from the members of the organization. The function of the band is to play at football games, at the Christmas and Spring sings, and at other college activities which might benefit from its presence. This year the band added two new features to its program: drum majorettes for the marching band and a combined concert with the Tufts-Jackson Chorus.

Snyder, Campbell.
Jacobus, Trautman, Larson.

SKINNER FELLOWSHIP

Skinner Fellowship, the Student Council of the School of Religion, completed what proved to be a year of social and intellectual stimulation. One of the most rewarding programs, made possible through the efforts of the president, Bruno Visco, was a panel by two of Boston's prominent clergymen on "Minister, Priest, or Prophet." Contributing immeasurably to the group this year were our new dean and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Hersey, integral members of our close-knit fellowship.

Hawkes, Bess, Program Chairman; Gaines, Visco, Pres.; Holman, Kimball, Vice-Pres.; Atwater.

RELIGIOUS COUNCIL

The Religious Council was formed in 1954 to promote better relations between the various religious organizations.

The faculty advisor is Dr. Eugene Ashton and the meetings of this group were held at his home on Talbot Avenue.

The Religious Council sponsored many joint activities. The most important was the annual observance of Brotherhood Week held in February, and two square dances in November and April.

Popular this year were the work sessions to discuss mutual problems which were held for advisers and officers of the various religious organizations.

Skames, Scory, Duffield, Engvall, Vice-Pres.; Regine, Pres.; King, Sec'y-Treas.; Block, Fournier, Magnoli.

CANTERBURY CLUB

The Canterbury Club is organized for the benefit of Episcopal students on the campus. This year the club held bi-weekly meetings and sponsored bi-monthly Communion services.

The programs were designed to produce a better understanding of Episcopalianism and the major world religions. To execute this plan, the club had various speakers and discussions.

Thanksgiving and Christmas services were held in conjunction with other Protestant groups. The group also supported the Religious Council Square Dance for the benefit of the Foreign Students Scholarship.

Duffield, Pres.; Hankins, Vice-Pres.; Heitbrink, Trautman, Scory, Bulls, Rec. Sec'y.; Ransom, Treas.

CONGREGATIONAL CLUB

The Congregational Club composed of students of Congregational, Presbyterian, and Baptist sects had a varied program of religious and social interest.

The club opened the season with a reception for entering freshman, with Reverend Chalmers Coe as speaker. At the next meeting, Dr. Ullman spoke on "Alcohol and the College Student." The club took advantage of the Columbus Day recess to make a sight-seeing trip to Concord. Also, the members were treated to a real Chinese dinner by Dr. and Mrs. Shih of the Chinese mission.

Puffer, Pres.; Casselman, King, Coburn, Vice-Pres.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION

The Christian Science Organization tries to instill into its members a better understanding of Christian Science and of how it can help them in their everyday problems. It also tries to bring to the non-Christian Scientist some idea of the Principle of Christian Science.

The Organization has had a prosperous year due to the increasing cooperation and interest of its members, making it possible to accomplish many things. Along with its weekly meetings, the club invited guest speakers to informal gatherings throughout the year.

Files, Stenberg, Werner.
Jones, Grasshoff, Anderson.

HILLEL

Hillel is the Jewish religious organization on Campus and is affiliated with the national college group. Advised by Rabbi Herman Pollack, the officers held monthly "brunch" meetings at which a late breakfast was served and students had opportunity to listen to lecturers on both religious and secular activities.

Every other week, groups met to discuss the topics, "Basic Judaism" and "Place of the Jewish Student." Also, Rabbi Pollack taught Hebrew and consulted students in need of advice or anxious to further their knowledge.

Winston, Kaufman, Sec'y.; Kornreich, Gitter. Block, Levine, V. P.; Cremer, Pres.; Gleicher, Treas.

NEWMAN CLUB

The Newman Club is the Catholic organization at Tufts. Its purpose is to develop a spiritual, social and intellectual atmosphere for the Catholic on a secular campus. The club is a member of the worldwide Newman Club Federation, and this year held the office of secretary of the Boston Province of this organization.

Father Basil W. Kenny, C. S. P., is the newly appointed chaplain to the campus. Father Kenny, a Paulist Father, instituted a guidance office in the Kursaal this year.

The meetings held this year were mostly lectures given on Tuesday afternoons. Many small discussion groups on apologetics and modern problems were held frequently. Socials were held every third week, and two of the major activities were a faculty reception for Father Kenny in November, the Spring dance held in April, and a series of Lenten Lectures given by Father Kron, C. S. P., on the "History of the Catholic Church."

Kearney, Treas.; Magnoli, Rec. Sec'y.; Regine, Pres.; Fr. Kenny, Chaplain; Spinale, Corr. Sec'y.; D'Amato, Vice-Pres.

ORTHODOX CLUB

The Orthodox Club was organized in 1951 to bring students of the Orthodox faith together to discuss and learn more about their religion and also to have a good time.

To become more acquainted with other Orthodox clubs, the Tufts organization invited B. U., Simmons, M. I. T., and Salem State Teachers to combined meetings where religious leaders enlightened them on some aspect of their religion.

During the season, some home cooked suppers starting with "yapraks" and ending with rich delicacies were prepared by the members.

Zervoglos, Mamary, Treas.; Harovas, Mavrakis, Karamechedis, Corr. Sec'y.; Kokaras, Deemys. Marinakis, Chigas, Pres.; Mavrongianis, Sec'y.; Skames, Shuris, Vice-Pres.

UNITY CLUB

The Unity Club is the organization for Liberal Religionists on campus. While its membership is largely Unitarian-Universalist, it is open to members of all groups interested in its progress. Under its president, Gil Heath, this year the Unity Club has had a full program of speakers, discussions, and recreation. Its series on the "Prophets of Liberalism" was especially well received. The club also participated in joint meetings with other Boston groups and in the national program of the Young Liberal Church.

Kimball, Marshall, Morse, Leighton, Mansfield.

WESLEY CLUB

The Wesley Club, the Methodist organization, met Sunday evenings at Hillside Methodist Church. Combined meetings, supper, business discussions, and worship services were led by the students under the direction of Rev. James Leslie and Faith Abbey.

Members of the club also met Tuesday noons to read and study the Bible. Two annual retreats, in the Fall and Spring took the students to Billerica for fun and worship. Plans were made to send delegates to the Christian Citizenship Seminar and to Europe to the Ecumenical Work Camps.

Isherwood, Fournier, Vice-Pres.; Watkins, Briggs, Pres.; Smith, Treas.; Langworthy.

Duncan, Cockey, Tancred, Poppendieck, Reardon, Furman.

FORENSIC COUNCIL

The Forensic Council is the executive committee of the Debating Society and is composed of students who have distinguished themselves in intercollegiate debating. Together with the Director of Forensics, the Council organized debate schedules and trips. This year the Council brought about two innovations; it inaugurated the Novice Prize Debate, designed to stimulate freshman debating, and it became associated with Tau Kappa Alpha, the national honorary forensic fraternity. For the seventh year the council was host to twenty colleges at the Tufts Debate Tournament, Dartmouth College winning the trophy.

Field, Hart, Van Heusden.

Goss, Sec.-Treas.; Wood, Pres.; Fox, Vice-Pres.

DEBATING SOCIETY

The Tufts Debating Society is designed to encourage and direct student participation in intercollegiate debating. This year, the national topic, "Whether or Not the United States Should Recognize Communist China", was stimulating and highly controversial; it caused criticism from Congressmen and was prohibited as a topic of debate in the military academies and numerous other universities.

This year, the Tufts debaters visited such colleges as Brooklyn, Dartmouth, Vermont, and Rhode Island, to compete in tournaments. The climax of the season was the Cherry Blossom Tournament in Washington.

Schwartz, Tyler, Shea, Hart, Goldberg, Van Heusden, Field, Fournier.

Kuhn, Fox, Goss, Wood, Miller, Johnson.

Lichtenstein, Donn, Fishman, Miller.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE CLUB

This club was organized to promote an understanding and appreciation of foreign languages and cultures among American students and to provide various social activities for the integration of foreign and domestic students.

This non-partisan club is composed of various members coming from all parts of the world; therefore providing for a closely knit international group.

Zecha, Pres.; McAvoy, Danielson, Sec.; Asiaf, Eknaian, Mittemeijer, Treas.; Talanian, Vice-Pres.; Uvanni.

FRENCH CLUB

Le Cercle Francais has striven to acquaint its members with the culture and people of France. With a knowledge of different aspects of French life, students are able to understand, to a greater extent, the language.

The group held many of its functions such as movies, plays, and social gatherings with French Clubs of colleges in Greater Boston. Also, many lecturers addressed the club members concerning France and its life.

Dr. Simches was an enthusiastic advisor and the group gained much from his assistance.

Giordano, DeCoursey, Johnson, McDermott, Kedian, Archambault, Prof. Simches, Faculty Advisor.

Christian, Nichols, Sec'y.; Cassarino, Pres.; Devlin, Treas.; Celia.

GERMAN CLUB

The "Deutsche Verein" provides an opportunity for students to increase their knowledge of the German language, folklore, and arts. The club offers both educational and social means to accomplish this end.

Through a series of talks by foreign students and members of the faculty, the new German folkways were explored. This year has seen the successful Fall Hike and Spring Outing preserve the outdoor spirit of the German folkways. The Fall and Spring banquets at the Rathskellar brought into reality samples of German culinary art and of melodic folk music.

Russo, Asst. Prof. Wells, Advisor; Mittemeijer, Uvanni, Babigian, Clopper, Prof. Newton, Advisor; Westphal, Meloni.

Talanian, Treas.; Bean, Pres.; Krueger, Vice-Pres.; Westphal, Sec'y.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

The International Relations Club is designed to encourage student interest in world affairs. To achieve this purpose, the club sponsored a program of visiting lecturers, round table discussions, and films about matters of world-wide importance.

This past year the club heard Professor Halm of the Fletcher School speak on "Socialism, the Road to Serfdom?" and Professor Fairbank from Harvard talk on "The China Problem." In addition to these noted men, the group heard other speakers of international prominence.

Rosenbaum, Sheiber, Schloeder, Fishman, Snyder, Treas.; Seaver, Fournier, Sterling, Sec.; Van Heusden, Pres.; Frandsen, Vice-Pres.

ECONOMICS CLUB

The Tufts College Economics Club is composed for the most part, of majors in the field who are interested in familiarizing themselves with leading personalities and topics of the day. The students along with Professor Manly, the sponsor of the organization, provide for the whole Tufts community four or five excellent programs each year. One of the most stimulating was a debate on "Ethics in the Modern Business World." The subject was discussed on the philosophical side by Professor Lasky of the Philosophy Department, and on the practical side by Professor Gray of the Economics Department.

Wuscke, Johnston, Steynen, Anderson, Bistany, Pres.; Fournier, Ramsdell, Mac Isaac, Haslam. Holmes, Fellows, McAvoy, Brackett, Duncombe, Vice-Pres.; Fitzgerald, Gartner, Drew, Sylvester, Choulian, Almasy, Weinstein, Muse, Treas.; Knese, Schmidt, Sec.

PRE-LEGAL SOCIETY

The Pre-Legal Society of Tufts College enables prospective law students to hear leading members of the profession speak on various aspects of legal practice and on the all important topic of admission to law school.

Among the speakers this past year, the Pre-Legal Society was pleased to present representatives from the law schools of the University of Chicago, Harvard University, Columbia University, and New York University.

Miller, Gooldberg, Field, Sec.; Fishman, Fournier, Vice-Pres.; White.

JACKSON ALL-AROUND CLUB

The Jackson All-Around Club was founded in 1897 and has grown to be the one social organization to which every member of the college automatically belongs.

The board remembers the letters of welcome to the class of '58, Freshman Week with the tour of Boston, and a new Jaxonite almost stranded on "Old Ironsides". The Jackson directories were out in time for Christmas, and gifts were collected for the underprivileged children of Boston. The ticket bureau plan sprung forth in February when many attended the London Festival Ballet.

MIDDLE HALL

Middle Hall, the English Society of Tufts College, is a club organized by the English Department for undergraduates and faculty.

The Club entertained many noted speakers: among these was Robert Frost who addressed the college community in the Goddard Chapel.

Dr. Sylvan Barnett of Tufts spoke about his trip to Europe during the summer of 1954, and Dr. Wisner Kinne, of the English Department, discussed his recently published book.

The Club had a Christmas meeting in the fashion of an old English Yule party. Other meetings included Student Reading of original work. Notable among these were the four undergraduate poets at Tufts who jointly published some of their work in a volume entitled "5 New Poets."

CAMERA CLUB

The aim of the Camera Club is to further photography as a hobby, both among the advanced and the novice. This year the club has had lectures on black and white photography, color photography, and dark-room techniques. With its ample funds, the club purchased more equipment for their dark-room, books, floodlights, and more tanks. Besides these activities the club took field trips into Boston and the North Shore. After each trip the members hashed over their prints. A beach party closed an excellent year.

Small, Stewart, Lee, Tang, Munro, Bancroft, Russo, Bourns, Sec.; Sickinger, Johnson, Vice-Pres.; Milne, Pres.

TUFTS MOUNTAIN CLUB

For the student who craves getting "back to nature" on a weekend, skiing enthusiasts, mountain climbers, or just plain fun-lovers, the Tufts Mountain Club is the organization that caters to all of these tastes and more.

This year, TMC held two open houses to introduce students to life at the lodge, which is located in the White Mountains near Plymouth, N. H. Also, the group hiked to Greeley Pond in the Waterville Valley, a winter skiing area, and climbed Cannon Mountain in Franconia Notch.

Parker, Ridley, Taylor, Vice-Pres.; Canzanelli, Pres.

TUFTS FILM SOCIETY

The Tufts Film Society brings to the Hill screen plays, documentaries, and experimental films, both American and foreign.

Occasionally, experts in the film industry are invited to speak at the showings. In the past year, the club has brought to the campus films showing the genius of John Barrymore, the modern comedy, "Harvey" and the realistic, Mexican picture, "The Young and the Damned."

Begun in 1948-49, as a branch of the Tufts College Theater, the Film Society has continued to present fine motion pictures that cannot be seen at the local theaters.

Friedman, Sec'y.; Bean, Treas.; Settimelli, Kazmann, Barron, Vice-Pres.

RODIN SOCIETY

The Rodin Society is an informal discussion group whose purpose it is to help its members acquire information about all fields of education. This year, faculty members from many departments and other experts spoke at the meetings.

In order to insure informality at its meetings, the society is limited to a dozen members, guided by their faculty advisor, Professor Lasky of the Philosophy Department.

Bender, Sec'y.; Bean, Laufer.

3 P'S

Pen, Paint, and Pretzels, the honorary undergraduate dramatic society, celebrated its forty-fifth anniversary this year.

The annual Pretzel Night show was presented at the beginning of first semester, and the regular season of plays opened with Jean Paul Sartre's tragedy, "The Flies". In way of contrast, this was followed by Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest". The musical comedy "Lady in the Dark" was produced in the spring term, and senior year was ended theater-wise with Shaw's "Man and Superman".

Although the major purpose of 3 P's is to encourage dramatic interest and activity on campus, the Pretzel lovers had their share too this year. In addition to the strike parties at the close of each show, which for the first time this year ran for six performances, was the Christmas party in a green and silvered lobby, a Beaux Arts Ball at which guests appeared dressed as their favorite dramatic characters, and the formal banquet in May, where the new members were initiated.

OFF-HILL CLUB

The Off-Hill Club is the primary means by which a commuter may become an integral part of the Tufts College Community.

At its bimonthly meetings, members were given an opportunity to meet fellow commuters. The club sponsored jazz concerts, teams in intermural sports, and groups in the Spring and Christmas Sings.

It is by participating in activities like these, that the Off-Hill is able to enjoy fully the college life offered here at Tufts.

Wright, Buckley, Pres.; Murray, Student Council Rep.

Anderson, Sec'y.; Choulian, Lyons.

CHEERLEADERS

The Tufts campus this past football season has seen a new football coach lead a winning team to a 6-2 seasonal score, but what is even more significant, it has seen the spirit necessary to back this team. This new spirit at Tufts was clearly visible in the Cheering Squad. An attempt was made to improve old cheers, and to introduce new ones. Thanks to the generous contribution of the Sophomore class and to the funds collected at Home-coming, new outfits were obtained and a great deal was added to the last game of the year.

INTER-DORMITORY COUNCIL

The Inter-Dormitory Council was founded to unify the various types of extracurricular life in the men's dormitories and also to place some authority regarding matters of student policy and conduct in the hands of a responsible and representative body of Tufts undergraduates. During the past year the Council has established policies for parties, and regulations for women visitors. An athletic system was established for a dormitory "trophy of trophies", and also a scholarship trophy for dormitories.

PRE-MEDICAL SOCIETY

The purpose of the Pre-Medical Society is to further the interests of its members in the biological sciences, medicine, and dentistry, and to aid its members in attaining their goals. To help achieve its purpose, the society in its monthly meetings, brought to the college as lecturers some of the foremost medical authorities in New England. The names of this year's speakers, such as Dean J. Hayman, Jr., of Tufts Medical School and Paul D. White, the heart specialist, would certainly be included in any "Who's Who In Medicine."

CHEMICAL SOCIETY

The Tufts Chemical Society, an affiliate of the American Chemical Society, is composed of graduate and undergraduate students interested in different phases of chemistry—research, teaching, and industry. Through its activities, the society brings to its members a broader view of chemistry than is possible in the classroom.

Lectures and movies elucidated recent advances in research and plant tours acquainted the members with various industries whose operation is based solely, or in part, on chemistry. This spring the society sponsored the Chemistry Open House.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA

The Carmichael chapter of the Future Teachers of America was organized in the spring of 1954 to further interest and understanding of the teaching profession by means of speakers, discussion groups, and panels.

This year FTA had many speakers including Miss Krastin, an English teacher at Arlington High School, representatives from the Massachusetts Education Department, and Dr. Wessel. The members enjoyed a social at the home of Dr. Wellington in January, and ended the year with a cookout and beach party.

FRESHMAN COUNSELORS

In order that the incoming freshmen have knowledge of the academic side of Tufts College, a group of 35 girls were chosen to help faculty advisors. These girls were instructed in a series of three sessions, in regards to writing to their five counselees over the summer about courses, classes, schedules, etc.

When the freshmen arrived on the campus, the counselors met them and during the Orientation Week were available to help the girls settle down to college life, both socially and academically.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS

The purposes of the Young Democratic Club of Tufts College are to create an awareness and understanding of political affairs at Tufts, to train young people in the mechanics of practical politics, and to support the Democratic party and Democratic candidates in partisan, local, state and national elections. The Young Democrats is a service organization of the Democratic Party. It does not take action on pending local, state or national legislation nor does it endorse candidates before a Party primary or non-partisan election.

Sterling, Baer, Snyder, Sheiber.

YOUNG REPUBLICAN CLUB

The Tufts College Young Republican Club has brought to the campus distinguished figures in Massachusetts political affairs, has sponsored discussion groups, and during the 1954 election campaign worked vigorously, in coordination with the Massachusetts State Republican Committee and the Medford Republican City Committee. For his work Mr. Miller, the president, received a commendation and letter of appreciation from the Governor of the Commonwealth.

The Tufts College Young Republican Club has been more than duly satisfied with its accomplishment in arousing interest among the student body.

LUIGI CLUB OF EAST HALL

The Luigi Club's primary objectives are to encourage a closer and more informal relationship between the residents of East Hall. The social functions of the Luigi Club are second to none on the campus. They also participate in all intramural athletics and functions which are open to the college community. The close cooperation shown by the club and all members of East Hall prove that the basic aims have been successfully achieved. They also deeply pride themselves in the fine Tufts spirit shown by the Club during the athletic seasons. Although the Luigi Club is restricted to residents of East Hall, all Tufts students are invited to attend many of their social functions.

ROCK AND DRUMLIN SOCIETY

The Rock and Drumlin Society's primary function is to promote friendship between students sharing an interest in Geology while increasing their knowledge of the Geological sciences.

This year, Dr. Warren Stearns and Dr. Robert Nichols of Tufts, Dr. Chau Waldreu of Harvard, and Thomas Wolfe of Boston University spoke on topics of general interest. Also, Dr. Gunman Bjareley, a famed mineralogist, lectured on mineral resources in New England. In addition, excellent films were shown on aluminum production and the mining of salt.

ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY

The Arnold Air Society is an honorary society of the advanced course AFROTC. The purpose of the Society is to acquaint the members with the activities of a modern air force. This year the cadets flew to Ohio for a tour of Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. They also visited the jet engine laboratories of the Lynn General Electric Company and other laboratories in the Boston area.

The group also ran a number of informal dances and socials for the AFROTC cadets. The year was climaxed by the annual Military Ball.

VARSITY CLUB

The Varsity Club was established to aid needy athletes at Tufts College. Today, more than $500 in scholarships are given out each year for this cause. This year, the club had over one hundred members representing athletes in all major sports on campus. The club was one of the most active on Hill. Its activities included the Fall Sports Dance, Spring Sports Dance, the Minstrel Show, Jazz Concert, and refreshment concessions at all college affairs.

JACKSON ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The JAA, an organization which promotes interest in healthful, recreational activities, supported several varsity teams, sponsored interdormitory and intersorority competition, and assisted with freshman orientation.

The All-Jackson Dinner was held in December with Mrs. Elmore MacFee as speaker. At the spring Awards Banquet, deserving girls received emblems, JAA pins, and white blazers.

The JAA has accepted the presidency of the New England Section of the Federation of College Women for 1955-56 and the organization's annual conference will be held here.

MASSACHUSETTS INTER- COLLEGIATE LEGISLATURE

The Massachusetts Intercollegiate Legislature is an organization whose primary purpose is to foster an understanding of the governmental process of this state and to present state officials for discussion so as to maintain an awareness of current political issues.

In addition to their basic aims they tend also to critically analyze the actual situation which confronts the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Besides attempting to clarify many misconceptions which might arise through a lack of interest or knowledge of the current political scene, the Legislature also tries to objectively arrive at intelligent conclusions which might be overlooked or misunderstood if the particular issues had not been thoroughly examined and discussed.

CLUB 35

Club 35, now in its sixth year of activity, is a group made up of athletes and students from Fletcher Hall. The purpose of the club is to increase good feeling among its members and to produce outstanding intramural athletic teams. Among its members there are captains of four sports and members of two honorary societies. Activities, which the Club had for this year included, open house at Homecoming for its alumni, the annual Christmas party, and the Spring Formal at Longwood Towers, Brookline.

Among athletic events, the team had individual championships in softball, football and Independent League Basketball. Club 35 also was prominent in interdorm activities.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

The purpose of the Panhellenic Council, which is composed of two delegates from each sorority, is to regulate sorority activities, such as rushing, and to foster panhellenic spirit.

In the fall, the inter-sorority marshmallow roast was held to introduce the freshmen to the sorority girls. On Halloween, almost two hundred couples attended the annual Panhellenic Dance. In December, the sororities made holiday favors for children in the Boston Floating Hospital. In March, the sorority girls directed, acted, and staged a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta at the Tufts Arena Theater.

Frankfort, Pres.; DeNunzio, Reynolds, Sec.-Treas.; Schmidt, Roberts, Tendler, Todreas.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

The Council spent most of late Fall drawing up and executing the plans for the annual I. F. C. Ball.

During the remainder of the year the Council became a more responsible governing body of the Fraternities than it had been in the past by establishing and carrying out definite policies concerning the Fraternities.

The council made an exhaustive study and a complete report upon discrimination within the nine Fraternities on Hill.

This year the Interfraternity Council surged forward in responsibility and leadership, and with the continued interest of capable members, the Council will continue to progress.

TENNIS

Hamstrung by the loss of returning lettermen and plagued by the lack of practice facilities early in the season, the Tufts Varsity Tennis Team struggled through the 1954 season with a 2 and 8 record.

Highlight of the season was the outstanding play of Jack Duncombe. Jack, #1 singles man throughout the season, showed a sharp aggressive brand of tennis. At the conclusion of the season he was elected Captain for 1955, and was also honored with the Most Valuable Player Award.

Sophomore Ralph Ahlburg, playing in the #2 slot most of the year, has a promising future. Three-year veteran, Captain Henry Cabeceiras, played steady tennis at #3. The remainder of the singles lineup varied from match to match with Dudley Brown, Bob Hunter, Carl Raine, Burt Cohen, Dick Cassidy, and Reggie Parsons all seeing action. Parsons in particular played fine tennis, and this sophomore was the most improved player on the squad at the end of the season.

The doubles combinations varied considerably, but Duncombe's slashing play made him a threat with any partner. Captain Cabeceiras' steadiness proved valuable when paired with the younger additions to the squad.

Coach Palmer is looking forward to 1955 when his top men will all be seasoned players.

It was no lawn party on the Tufts greens for Spring '54. The Varsity Golfers rang up an 8-6 record on the scoreboard. Captain Dick Welch led the team past the gloom of the first match, a defeat to Babson, on to five straight victories over Bridgewater State Teachers College, Bates, Colby, Bowdoin, and Lowell Textile respectively. Connecticut, a pace-setter on the collegiate links in New England, blocked the winning streak, and the Brown and Blue saw defeat at the hands of the Amherst Lord Jeffs as well as the B. U. Terriers. But the resilient Jumbo linksmen bounced back with a dual win, 12½-5½ over W. P. I. and 10-8 over Clark. After a loss to M. I. T. in a hard and close match, the Tuftsmen closed out the season with a gallant romp over Wesleyan 18-9.

The top six men respectively for the Tufts' "Sammy Sneads" were Captain Dick Welch, John Wohlschlaeger, known as "Old Grandad", Dick Ingmanson, Howie Rockwell, Dick Hurley, and Al Woodis, with capable Al Fraier filling the utility slot.

Coach Ellis thought the record of the team augurs well for next year.

LACROSSE

Led by co-captains, Bill Hallam and Barry Symons, the 1954 Varsity Lacrosse team chalked up 3 wins and 7 defeats for the season. Besides being the high scorer of the team with 23 goals and 12 assists, Bill Hallam was also chosen the most valuable player. Much credit should be given to our goalie, Barry Symons and such players as Dave Harrison, Phil Crosby, Fred McCurdy, Cy Shaw, John O'Brien, Tom Markham, and Frank Bushfield for their teamwork and spirit.

Since Coach Ring lost many men through graduation, including his co-captains, he will have to count heavily upon the new co-captains Dave Harrison and John O'Brien along with Ed Bacon, Ed Burke, Ken Dickson, Dick Godzinski, Dave Rice, George Knightly, Tom Markham, Frank Bushfield, Fred Sears, Cy Shaw, Lanny Shrum, Gordie Bennett, and Roy Tarvin to give the team the needed drive for a successful season.

BASEBALL

The Tufts diamond cutters started off the 1954 spring season with a southern trip. Quiet enough in its overall record, it was noteworthy for the discovery of two sophomores who plugged the holes in the Jumbo infield, Dick Murphy at first and Bob Gardner at short. Missing from next year's lineup will be the talents of Fred Gerulskis, Tommy Myers, and Bobby Meehan. Coach John "Jit" Rick-er kept the Jumbos buzzing, especially in the New England competition. Up north the team painted a 7 and 10 record on the Tufts scoresheet.

Tufts was carried back to old Virginny at Fort Belvoir in the first game in their southern rendezvous. The G. I.'s from Belvoir, loaded with minor leaguers, had previously romped over seven college nines. Tufts losing 17-4 and 4-0 was not the straw that broke the back of the army mule.

Because of his performance as a relief hurler, Ronnie Lengyel was rewarded with a starting assignment against Rutgers. He gave up only two earned runs, but bad defensive play combined with the speedy Rutgers baserunners to give the Red and Black the victory 6-3.

From Rutgers, the Jumbo nine went on to Princeton, N. J. and proceeded to get its ivory tusks gored by the Tigers. The Princetonian nine-hit attack was levied against Tufts moundman John McGrath, who received very little batting support.

In the last game of the spring trip the Jumbos jumped off to a three-run lead against Upsala. But the Tufts pitching couldn't hold the Vikings at bay. Upsala scored a disputed run to take the lead 5-4, but Dick Murphy's clutch two-out single in the ninth scored Fred Gerulskis and tied the game. The game was called at the end of the eleventh inning with the score still knotted.

The Jumbos started off their Greater Boston League competition by dropping a close one to Harvard 10-8. Both teams got off to a rapid start, each scoring 5 runs in the first three innings, after which the Rickermen went ahead by two. But they were tied in the seventh when the game was called. In the completion of the early season 8-8 tie, Harvard triumphed 10-8 in two innings on two steals of home plate.

In a non-league game at Worcester, a very powerful Holy Cross team led all the way to defeat the Tufts team 5-1.

In its second non-league game, Tufts assumed a three-run lead against Bowdoin in the third inning, but the Polar Bears came back with two in the fifth. That was all the scoring until the ninth, when on an infield hit, a triple, and a sacrifice, Bowdoin scored twice to notch the win 4-3.

It took a brilliant two hitter by Fred Gerulskis to get the Brown and Blue off to winning ways against Northeastern (5-0). Ken Janello led the Tufts attack with two of the 8 hits and 3 runs batted in.

Tufts won its second straight by beating MIT 3-0 behind the five-hit pitching of John McGrath, who struck out six and gave up 4 walks. Bobby Meehan collected 3 of Tufts' six hits and scored 2 runs.

Tufts then ran up against league-leading B. U. Both games ended in Jumbo losses 5-2 and 8-1.

Middle Row — R. Lengyel, J. Bonasia, F. O'Brien, W. Sawin, R. Murphy, R. Gardner, C. Schmid, D. Lynch.
Front Row — Coach "Jit" Ricker, R. Meehan, K. Janello, F. Gerulskis, V. Swoyer, R. Bennett, T. Myers, G. Peterren, D. Callahan.

Next came six straight Jumbo wins with U. of Mass., W. P. I., M. I. T., Harvard, and Brandeis twice as victims.

In the second Brandeis game, Tufts walloped the Judges 7-1 behind the five-hit pitching of dependable John McGrath. He had a shut out until the ninth inning when a Brandeis man reached on an error and was brought in on an error and a triple.

In the Harvard game two-run homers by Bob Meehan and Tom Myers, Bob Gardner's triple, a pair of singles, two stolen bases and an error gave Tufts a seven-run fourth as the Jumbos defeated the Crimson 7-2. The game, limited to seven innings, wound up the Greater Boston League schedule with Tufts finishing with a 6-6 record. The victory was John McGrath's fifth in the league against one defeat.

Tufts closed out its 1954 season in a squeaker, losing to the Lord Jeffs of Amherst 6-5. Bob Meehan paced the Tuftsmen with 2 hits, one of which was a homer. Bob Bennett and John McGrath contributed two hits apiece to the valiant Tufts cause. The team owed much to the brilliant fielding of shortstop Bobby Gardner. After the game the squad gave tribute to Bobby Meehan and Tommy Myers by electing them as co-captains for the '54 season.

What am I doing here?

The weather last spring did not permit the Jumbos or any other team to get in shape. The Varsity held three of four scheduled dual meets with the last one being held in a steady drizzle.

In the year's first meet, the Jumbos thawed the Bowdoin Polar Bears 70-65. Dick Kruger took a first in the high and low hurdles. Steve Wilkey's two firsts in the 440 and the 880 were thrilling as usual. Captain Alleyne took first in the 100 yard dash and third in the 220.

Grandma, What big eyes you have!

OUTDOOR TRACK

In the second meet, M. I. T. handed the Jumbos their first defeat of the season, 81-54.

In the last dual meet of the year, Tufts, weakened in several spots, was defeated by Northeastern, 76½ - 57½.

Tufts finished 4th in the Eastern Intercollegiate Track and Field Championships at White Stadium. Tufts was nosed out of third place by one point by Boston College. The Jumbos 20⅓ points came from Wilkey, Calkin, Kruger, Schuler, Alleyne, and Bowering. Wilkey took first place in the 440, missing the meet record by two tenths of a second.

The Tufts Cross Country team, supposedly destined for a disastrous year, came through with a surprisingly good season last fall. Even its 3-3 record cannot rightly be taken as a criterion of the team's success, as all three of the defeats were by margins of less than five points.

The bulk of the team's load was carried by Jim Powers, Captain Al Price, Ron Stockwell, and Ed Zink. Powers himself accounted for four first places.

In post season voting, Dick Willander was elected captain for 1955 and Jim Powers was chosen most valuable man for the past season.

SOCCKER

The Jumbo Soccer team compiled two wins, three ties, and five losses, but with a couple of breaks, this mediocre season would have turned into a success.

The Brown and Blue opened the season with a loss to a strong Amherst team. In the second game, the team booted home a 3-1 victory with Gordie Johnson scoring two goals and Jack Duncombe one.

In their next games, Gerry Higgs and Captain Ed Budd played great defensive ball against Trinity and M. I. T., but the Jumbos were lacking in the scoring department.

Then, after playing a grueling 98 minutes, the Jumbos and Worcester Polytech wound up in a 2-2 tie. Duncombe and George Deemys scored for Tufts.

The next game, against Lowell Textile, also ended in a tie, this time 1-1. Dud Woodard scored the only goal with Win Briggs starring in goal.

In a driving rainstorm, Wesleyan outplayed the Jumbos to take the next encounter. However, the team came back to belt Brandeis and romp home with seven goals.

The Boston University game was the third overtime game that entered the record books as a tie. The Terriers scored their final goal with thirty seconds left to play and the game ended with three goals for each team. Fullbacks Tom Lomax and Fran Comunale played great ball, and Deemys chipped in with his fifth goal of the year to make him the team's high scorer. The other Jumbo goals were scored by Dud Woodard and Jack Duncombe. The team finished out their schedule against a powerful Massachusetts team and succumbed 2-0.

The soccer team, playing with mostly sophomores and juniors this year, gained a great deal of experience and should be one of the strongest Tufts teams next year.

"Oh, Captain, My Captain" (Francini)

The Tufts College football team enjoyed its most successful grid season since 1943. Coach Harry Arlanson, making his debut as a college coach, developed a very successful team despite injuries and other unfortunate mishaps. Faced with the problem of teaching a new system with only three weeks of practice and performing his duties as new Director of Athletics, Arlanson had an added burden to his already difficult job. In these crucial days, he was ably aided by an excellent coaching staff composed of Ross Pritchard "Gus" Plausse, "Woody" Grimshaw, and Gene Rose. By the time of the first game, the team had been brought around nicely under these men and under the team leadership of Captain John Francini and Bob Meehan.

The Brown and Blue opened its 1954 season with Bowdoin on September 25. The team traveled to Brunswick a five-point underdog, but returned a seven-point winner. During the interim, touchdowns by sophomores Normie Wright and Ralph Thompson, plus a safety by Gerry Barton, gave the Jumbos a 14-7 victory.

The next encounter for the Tufts eleven was with a spirited Wesleyan team. But Wesleyan, defensively geared to stop Normie Wright, was caught off guard by the thrusts of fleet-footed Dave Wells and by the bucking of Bill Sawin. These two combined with the brilliant decoy play of Wright for a 26-6 win.

October 9 found 5000 fans on hand to watch the fullback duel between Tufts' Normie Wright and Trinity's Charlie Sticka. Although the Brown and Blue succumbed to Trinity, 27-6, the personal duel ended in our favor. Wright gained more yards per carry than Sticka, plus throwing the key block on Dave Wells' exciting ninety-five yard sprint for a touchdown.

Tufts, possessing a two-and-one record, met Colby up at Waterville, Maine. In this contest sophomore quarterback Ralph Thompson showed great ability at running the club. He completed nine out of twelve passes and also scored six points on a punt return as the Jumbos won 28 to 14.

October 23, Williams played host to Tufts at Weston Field. Touchdowns by Bill Sawin, a transfer student from Williams, Dave Wells and Normie Wright gave the Jumbos a 21-6 victory. Wells, the long distance specialist, ran 85 yards to score, with Wright making the key block.

Tufts, playing its best game of the season, defeated an Amherst team which had a string of fourteen games without a loss. Dave Wells, who seems to have an obsession for long scoring jaunts, gave another 85-yard exhibition of speed, with Norm Wright and Howie Bowdring throwing crucial blocks. This score, plus Norm Stewart's talented toe, gave the Jumbos an upset victory over Amherst.

On November 6, Tufts played its next game with the University of Rochester, at Rochester, New York. The game was the scene of amazing individual effort by the sophomore sensation, Norm Wright. Wright scored all three of the Jumbo tallies with great runs of 49, 56, and 89 yards to give the Tufts eleven a 21-20 victory over the up-state New Yorkers.

Homecoming, November 13, found Tufts meeting the unpredictable University of Massachusetts. The Redmen proved to be the spoilers of the year, adding Tufts along with Harvard as its upset victims by a score of 19-13. Bill Sawin was the first recipient of the Phi Epsilon Pi Trophy presented to the most outstanding player of the game.

The whole college community was proud of Coach Arlanson's excellent job of developing the team with a fine record. Normie Wright was selected on the first team of the Little All-American, with his teammates Dave Wells, Bob Mattson and Capt. John Francini all getting honorable mention. A special recognition should go to Dave Harrison for playing in twenty-eight straight varsity football games and to Bob Meehan for extraordinary efforts while with the team, as well as to Karl Schmid who so adequately took over the duties of trainer upon the death of Frank Alexander.

The Tufts Basketball team, under the excellent coaching of George "Woody" Grimshaw, completed its most successful season since the days of Perry, Goodwin, Mullaney, and the like. Led by co-captains John Heneghan of Somerville and Fran O'Brien of Lexington, the Jumbos gained national recognition for their scoring feats. Throughout the season, the Brown and Blue hoopsters were on a par with the top scoring quintets in the country and Heneghan ranked with the top twenty-five individual scorers. Heneghan also was rated third in field goal shooting percentage.

After a mediocre start when they lost to a powerful Holy Cross club, the Jumbos overwhelmed Clark University. Then, after losing a hard-fought game to Norwich, the team piled up an impressive string of victories. Noteworthy among these were wins over Middlebury, University of Massachusetts, Brandeis, and Harvard.

In the Middlebury game, guard Frannie O'Brien dropped a foul shot in the bucket with twenty seconds left in the game to allow Tufts to edge out the Vermonters 84-83. Heneghan was high scorer for the Jumbos with 28 points. At the University of Massachusetts gym, Heneghan and John McGrath dunked in 19 points each, to defeat the highly-touted Redmen 90-76. Later in the season, our high-spirited Jumbos piled up 14 points in the last three minutes of play to beat the Harvard Crimson 68-58. This last-minute surge climaxed an uphill battle for the Brown and Blue in which the Johnny Harvards led until four minutes remained to be played.

Stop

Hands Up

During his undergraduate career, Co-captain Heneghan shattered practically every Tufts scoring record. He presently holds the all-time collegiate scoring record for both three and four years and at the time of this writing needs only to continue his present pace to break the seasonal scoring record of 440 points currently held by Jim Mullaney, Class of 1951.

This year a new milestone in Tufts athletic history was established when co-captains Heneghan and O'Brien were awarded their fourth varsity letters in basketball. They are the second and third men in modern Tufts history to have accomplished this feat. Other graduating seniors on this year's team are Jim Hayes, John McGrath, and Larry Bianchi.

The starting five for the Jumbo hoopsters, most of the season, were Heneghan, O'Brien, McGrath, Hayes, and Bobby Fasciano. Junior Sam Sherman played great ball all year substituting at needed positions. Since four of his five starters will hang up their sneakers after the 1954-5 season, Coach Grimshaw will have to depend a great deal on his strong bench composed of Bobby Gardner, Don Daveau, Al Hartley, Don Singdahlsen, and Dave Feinberg next year.

The freshman squad under the capable coaching of first-yearman Bobby Meehan had an impressive 14 wins and 2 defeats with only two games remaining at the time of this writing. It seems quite likely that boys like Phil Shaw, Bert Muench, Pete Stanley, Ira Stepanian, Pete Williamson, and George Manias will be able to fill the positions on the varsity left open by the graduating seniors. All in all, things still look bright in the basketball picture for the Brown and Blue.

SWIMMING

The Tufts Swimming team suffered severely this season from the loss of many outstanding swimmers. But the squad held their own, with a good percentage of the meets being decided by the last relay event.

Setting the pace for the mermen in the freestyle events were juniors Tom Arnold, Bruce Earley, and Bill Wright. Highlight of the season was sophomore Herb Franck who broke the Tufts team records in the backstroke and the 150 yard individual medley event. Later in the season, he broke his own record in the backstroke event for a new mark. Coach Larry Palmer feels that Franck is capable of even more outstanding work. Junior Dick O'Neil paced the diving events with his excellent form on the board, taking many firsts in the meets. Paul Sheiber, the only senior on the team during the season, did the valuable work in the distance events.

Co-captains Tom Arnold and "Huck" Davidson felt that the team holds good promise for the future with a strong freshman squad coming up. Wayne Pickering, a valuable member of the freshman team, broke the Tufts Varsity team record in the 150 yard individual medley event later this year.

Other valuable members of the squad who rounded out the team were freestylers Dick Simonds, Bucky Finnerman, and Sam Ina, breaststrokers Pete Mangels, Dave Kornreich, and Pete Paige, backstroker Ed O'Malley, and diver George Deemys.

The 1954-5 edition of the Jumbo grapplers was composed mostly of underclassmen having but one to two year's experience. Little remained of the strong freshman squad three years ago that had looked so promising.

Captain Ray Butler, last year's most valuable player, again performed with amazing speed and strength in the 130 lb. class. Kim Brown (157) and Eugene MacKay (167) were the only veteran seniors on the squad. Unfortunately, Brown was forced to quit about mid-season leaving a weakspot on the team.

MacKay was challenged in his class this year by Gerry Higgs, Ed Kelley, and George Glass. When MacKay was unable to compete, Higgs won two matches by falls.

Jack Burke, a senior in his first year of competition filled the gap in the 147's with astonishing success for a beginner. Doug Switzer and Dave Foley wrestled in the 123 and 137 lb. classes respectively, showing constant improvement. In the 177 and the unlimited, Tony Oliviera and Warren Kean always provided excitement.

And away we go

HOCKEY

The 1954-55 Hockey Team will go down in Tufts sports history as one of the greatest athletic teams ever to don the regalia of the Brown and Blue. With slightly more than half the season completed, the pucksters compiled a record of eleven wins and one defeat. In these games Jumbos scored 114 goals to make them one of the top offensive teams in the East. Defensively the Jumbos have allowed 54 goals to be chalked up against them. Thanks to this outstanding record, the Jumbos are currently ranked seventh in the East, outranking such powers as Yale, R. P. I., and B. U.

The first line of Co-captain Gerry Mahoney at center with Dick Kelley and Charlie Cinto at the wing slots is currently the highest scoring line in college hockey with 64 goals and 73 assists to its credit. Whitey Hamilton, Bob Cox, and Ed Kidston make up the second line while the third wave had Leo Spang centering for Paul Colbert and Frank Barbuto. Sophomores Charlie Ehl and Bill Ryder were the spare wings.

Senior John O'Brien and junior Leo Mackey were the first defensive combination and they did a very effective job all season long. The defense was further bolstered by a trio of rugged sophomores, John Stamegna, Bob Dallin and Art Conley.

Co-captain Hal Taylor tended goal and turned in several stellar performances during the season. He was ably assisted by a pair of promising sophomores, Jake McGillen and Don Conn.

Perhaps the deadliest gear in the Jumbos offensive machine was center Whitey Hamilton, whose 25 goals and 21 assists for 46 points make him at this time the leading scorer in the East. Other top scorers for the Jumbos were Dick Kelley with 23 goals and 21 assists for 45 points, and Charlie Cinto and Co-captain Gerry Mahoney who both had 41 points. Cinto had 27 goals and 14 assists, while Mahoney had 14 goals and 27 assists.

SKI TEAM

As a member of the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference, and under Co-Captains Keene Swett and Thomas Mooney, the Ski Team initiated its season by capturing the Osborn Trophy at Big Bromley in Manchester, Vermont. In competition with Northeastern, Princeton, B. C., B. U., Brown, Keene Tech-er's College, Holy Cross, M. I. T., and New England College, the Tufts squad this year showed great promise. The team received a larger turnout of prospective candidates than it has had in the past four years, and with four good men returning next year, the team seems to be well established.

And then there are the guys at Tufts who take gym. Sometimes they show up at three classes a week and other times they cut. Also, we find the walking 3.8 average who couldn't remember his combination number unless he was given a quiz on it. But it's all in the realm of athletics.

INDOOR TRACK

And here we are again

This year Tufts hasn't had the large number of outstanding performers it has had in the past. The boys had to get down and really work as a team to turn in good performances. The first meet with Northeastern proved that the Tufts team would have to get down and work together. The second meet proved that they could.

The Northeastern meet was lost 45 to 59. The last three or four events were indecisive; but Northeastern proved too strong in the critical events. In the 600 Steve Wilkey took first and Parker Calkin took third. In the 1000 Wilkey took another first. The jumps also proved to be a Jumbo stronghold, with Roger Schuler and Victor Faucon taking the top honors.

The Boston College meet was won by Tufts 72 to 32. B. C. wasn't able to get more than one first place in the entire meet. Dick Krueger looked in top form as he took first in the hurdles. Brooks Johnson won the 50 yard dash with Co-Captains Steve Wilkey and Parker Calkin tying for first in the 600. Ken Glick in the shot put and Frank Cogliano in the hammer showed good form as they took firsts. Tufts then swept the high jump and broad jump with Faucon, Bowering, and Reagan tying for first at 6'2" and Schuler taking first in the broad jump. In the pole vault, Ng took first place at 10'6". To finish the meet off, the Jumbos won the relay too.

Here I am and there you are

Catch

Tufts entered winning relay teams in the Knights of Columbus and the BAA games. The team consisted of Johnson, Faucon, Calkin and Wilkey. In the K. of C. meet, Steve Wilkey won for the second straight year the Farrell 500 yard dash. Steve now holds the Boston Garden record of 2.14 for this event.

Jackson Sports

SWIMMING

Staff: Miss Beedem, Mrs. Hibbard, Miss Wright.

The Jackson speedsters of the 1954 swimming team worked hard at Hamilton pool under the coaching of Miss Gertrude Goss and ended the season undefeated. Besides racing for competition, the girls swam at Wellesley's annual playday on March 6th.

Jackson went to Pembroke on March 10th for their first meet of the year. Ann Frazier came out on top in the diving competition. In the 40-yard freestyle, Rufus Roberts and Ann finished first and second, while Bobbsie Van Heertum swam into first place in the 20-yard backstroke. Chip Curtin and Yrsa Grasshoff were Jackson's outstanding form swimmers, as well as being valuable assets in the relays. Jackson came out on top, beating Pembroke by a total of 50 to 34.

Radcliffe came to Tufts on March 17th to meet the Jacksonites. Ann again took the diving and came in first in the 50-yard freestyle, with Rufus second. Yrsa raced to victory in the 25-yard breaststroke event. Jackson finished first in all three relays; Roberts, Grasshoff and Curtin teamed up for the 75-yard medley; Dee Giles, Roberts, Frazier and Curtin sprinted in the 100-yard freestyle relay, and Roberts and Grasshoff took first and second in the 75-yard individual medley. Jackson won their second and last meet, totaling 55 points to Radcliffe's 28.

The 1955 swimming team again met Radcliffe and Pembroke, this time at two trimural meets, one at Pembroke and one at Tufts.

TENNIS

Jacksonites' rackets could be seen many a fine afternoon working out on the courts, while Hodgdon Hall raised itself out of the first golf tee next to them. The girls in the white shorts finished the 1954 season undefeated.

As with the softball team, two matches had to be cancelled, leaving only Pembroke for the Jackson racketeers to conquer. And so they did. Winning two of the three singles and both doubles, the Tufts gals took Pembroke, 4-1. All were served sandwich suppers by the Pembroke teams shortly thereafter, so that both the softball and tennis teams could get back to the hill in time for Spring Sing.

Back Row — M. Kane, G. Raynsford, B. Moor, R. Roberts, J. Rogers.

The softball team of last spring, besides retrieving foul balls from the ditch and catcher's mitts from the Somerville 10-year olds, showed great spirit in the field and at bat, especially in their celebrated game against the Thetes. Trading pitchers and catchers with the "invincible" Theta Delta Chi, Jackson gave the boys a close contest, ending the five-inning game in a 9-9 tie.

With rainy weather for the New Hampshire game and a cancelled game with Radcliffe, Pembroke remained for the Jacksonites to face. On May 18th the team took over the Brown women's field, but the game was half over before they started really hammering from the plate. Pembroke stayed in the lead and it was a 5-2 finish, favor Pembroke.

ARCHERY

The '54 archery squad, under the coaching of Mrs. Hibbard, was a small but active group. Jacksonites Jane Metcalf, Betty Quimby, Joan Shoolman, and Mary Lawson wielded their bows and arrows at the triangular archery meet last May to place a close third in the competition between Radcliffe, Pembroke, and Jackson. Jane Metcalf was high scorer for Jackson, placing third in the individual scores of the meet. Jane, a senior in '54, also won top place in a home meet between the members of the squad, for which she was presented with a silver cup at last year's J. A. A. banquet.

The Jackson field hockey team opened its season on October 19th with a 0-0 tie with Bouve. Since the game was primarily a defensive one, the varsity playing of Patti Jameson, Judy Webb, Ann Temple, and Nancy Austin was outstanding. Neither the offense nor the defense had a chance to show their prowess in the next game as they were overwhelmed by Ratcliffe's skillful team on October 27th. However, the offense controlled the game with Pembroke as they handed them a 2-0 defeat on the victor's field on November 10th. The game with the University of New Hampshire proved to be the most exciting of the season. Tied at a score of 1-1 until the last minute of the game, Jackson went on to win. Within sixty seconds, Polly Spillane shot the winning goal to give the team their second victory of the season. This left the varsity team with a record of two victories, one tie, and one defeat. The co-captains for the 1954 season were seniors, Patti Jameson and Judy Webb. Other girls who played were Ann Temple, Nancy Austin, Polly Spillane, and Trish Baldwin. Flo Reynolds, Paula Lanigan, and Jan Easton represented the junior class while freshmen Sheila Gallivan and Joanna Cornelius also played first string.

MODERN DANCE

Jackson's modern dancers, clad in black leotards and green skirts, meet once a week in Jackson Gym's modern dance room. The members of the group present one show a year free of charge for the Tufts community. This year's Annual Spring Recital was made up of a variety of numbers, with The Wizard of Oz as one of the main themes.

The girls also have opportunities to meet modern dancers from other New England colleges at symposiums held during the school year. This year the club went to Radcliffe, where they participated in a master lesson given by Mrs. Meyers of Smith College. Last year, the symposium was held at Pembroke College.

A performance is also given by the dancers on Alumni weekend. This year's program included a round and a Spanish dance.

Through improvisation, interpretation and hard work the members of the Dance Group express their love for dancing — both for self-satisfaction and public entertainment.

BADMINTON

The 1954 Jackson badminton team finished the season with two wins and one loss. The Jackson bird-batters travelled to Pembroke for their first meet to defeat their rivals by a total of 5 to 3. Joan Lake was outstanding as she took her singles match, and the combinations of Scott-Coolidge and O'Brien-Hall clicked to take both doubles.

On March 17th Jacksonites Ann Wright, Noreen Hall, and Bebe Scott were victorious against Radcliffe but the Harvard coeds fought to come out on top by a score of 2-3. The final game with U. N. H. starred Wright and Lake as they won their singles, and again Hall-O'Brien and Coolidge-Scott paired off victoriously in the doubles games. Jackson took the match, 4-2.

The '55 team went to the nets with veterans A. Tedesco, E. Brenman, B. Callow, C. Harvey, N. Hall, J. Nichols, A. Modestow, J. Lake, B. Ponack, K. Snitwongse, and A. Temple, along with newcomers E. Jevely, J. Krasne, U. Nand, C. Climenko, C. Crist, S. Nichols, A. Monier, and H. Connell.

BASKETBALL

Jackson can be proud of its 1954 basketball squad, which finished the busy winter season with a total of five victories out of six games played.

Jackson and Bouve played a close, exciting game in which Jackson suffered their only loss of the season. In the game against Gordon College, Paula Lanigan contributed 9 points to Jackson's victorious score of 25-20. The team then travelled to Pembroke for another victory, this time with a score of 55 to 33. Boston College School of Nursing also suffered defeat at the able hands of the Jacksonite hoopsters: the score, 49-14. After defeating Radcliffe, the Jacksonites played a close game with the University of New Hampshire. Although UNH was in the lead at the half by a score of 20-18, Jackson pulled ahead to finish with 52 points to UNH's 41 points. Faith Ellis was high scorer in this game with 27 points.

This year's squad looked good with many of the '54 team back. These veterans included Patti Jameson, Judy Webb, Flo Reynolds, Paula Lanigan, Helen Friend, and Joan Dartnell.

Games with Bouve, Pembroke, UNH, and the Alumnae were included in the '55 schedule.

The "Color Carnival" was an exhibition of water ballet not to be missed last spring. In conjunction with Bouve, Sargent, and Radcliffe, the Jackson Marlins organized and presented a varied and colorful show.

Miss Gertrude Goss, who helped to introduce synchronized swimming to America, is the Marlin coach. With her expert advice and the enthusiasm of the swimmers, the "Color Carnival" was an event enjoyed by swimmers and viewers alike.

Each school presented interpretations of moods suggested by a color. Jackson, using green as their theme color, presented three varied numbers. A "Symphony in Spring" was gracefully executed to the music of the "Barcarolle." Six Jacksonites interpreted a "Return to Paradise," and "Forest Frolics" was splashed out to the tune of the popular Bunny Hop. Bouve showed their skill in the water with "Night Lights," "Manhattan Shadows," and "Stepping Out," all portraying a mood suggested by the colors black and white. Sargent interpreted the color red and Radcliffe used blue to complete the color scheme. A grande finale, with swimmers from all four schools participating, wound up the Color Carnival.

Besides presenting a show every year the Marlins are often asked to swim for alumni and pre-freshmen. Last June they presented "Ebb Tide" at M. I. T. and at the Braeburn Country Club.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Days, months, years pass too quickly . . . study, classes, too long brothers meetings, formals, Saturday nights . . . People, too . . . brothers, scenes you don't forget . . . Deady's jigs and accordion, the Casis, Bud's nude and champagne glass murals . . . Help Week, Sunday mornings (Carroll's anyone?) . . . 2:00 A. M. ram parties, Tote board (Place your bets — WHO?) . . . The model home off the chapter room open for inspection . . . Homecoming, the formal at Woodland C. C., and that Christmas thing (Skits?) . . . Christmas Sing: with the perpetual trophy at stake, a chance to win for the third time in a row, we sang for all we were worth — Charlie is currently being served up for dinner . . . some of us wish that Woolf wouldn't bang on the piano so much, especially during exam periods . . . the dog bone, an established tradition, why are some so hesitant to accept the honor inherent in that worthy institution? . . . There are our four years . . . when we return for a last look in the fall after graduation, we will see a new generation of Taus at 134 . . . and we will know that, as each of us has left his mark here in someway, so the house has left its impression on us, and we will feel it always.

Back to school, renewing old acquaintances and many senior faces missing . . . Rush Week . . . a Greenwich Village party and a Caribbean Cruise, but thank goodness it is over . . . Joe is President of the National . . . Nat is back from Alaska . . . Queen Emie . . . Homecoming trophy . . . "Me and my Gal from Delta Tau" . . . Pledge Formal at the Salem Country Club . . . Very trigonom-itrating . . . Georgia . . . "Chestnuts roasting on an open fire" . . . Rathskeller party — "Drink, Drink, Drink to eyes" . . . Oh no, Jim, not again! Thanks, Joe . . . The rush is on for getting pinned . . . Executive Suite . . . The Weak-Greek . . .

The Iron Man . . . TU anyone . . . Ah gee fellows, pancakes again . . . "we got a little chapter up in" . . . Theodore Roosevelt Woods the 3rd . . . The "Deltones" . . . "A very citronellaish situation" . . . the Fox . . . Aruba for Christmas anyone? Fred Blish down at the theater again . . . New Year's Eve party a week late, but still a gala affair . . . National award for best pledge average . . . Formal at Magnolia and beach party at Crane's Beach . . . Formal Chow? . . . It's been a great year at 98 . . . There will be Delts wherever you go!

Steak Night

A new paint job over the summer, everything is brighter this year . . . In the reign of Julian the living room got a new shining floor, and tile in the dining room . . . Herb Mershon as house man . . . a pine-paneled cellar, a new storeroom for George . . . Pete and Anita toe the mark for the last mile . . . a new pledge class finds itself in this "crazy college life" . . . second for the Jumbo academic award . . . The house swarms with varsity men, a share of the '54 sophomore stars are ours . . . a sports conscious house makes a good intramural showing, and the armchair quarterbacks talk it out well into the night . . . Dawn breaks up the card games and Magoo sleeps under the machine . . . Homecoming with previews of coming attractions in Med and Dent school . . . A wonderful Pledge Formal at the Boston City Club . . . Tommy narrating the "Night Before Christmas" . . . The pledges, between line-ups, painting and refinishing the house . . . seeing Carmichael looming before the living room window showed we were closer to the hill than ever before . . . I. F. C., I. D. C., Student Council, and weekly representatives . . . debaters, beer parties a new deep freezer, a motion for a paved lawn — not passed —, and the house hasn't been so close in years . . . a year to remember.

Their worth and popularity shine in their graduates and is mellowed by admirable age . . . Ours is among the oldest . . . one hundred and eight years in existence . . . It is no small matter of pride to realize that in the history of Tufts' Theta Delta Chi has produced four of its eight presidents . . . But all this is only background, important in itself but subordinate to that which is living, learning and enjoying . . . Enjoying fine parties like the French and German parties and the formals put on by Pete Jenkins . . . Enjoying the laughs and warm feelings in just knowing and liking each other . . . And the spirit aroused by men like our own mayor Bucky Spurr, and our athletic chairman Ward Talbot . . . Enjoying that grand feeling of belonging, having responsibility, having tradition to hold up, but most important, of cultivating life-long friendships . . . It is like that at the Thete house.

THINKERS ON THOUGHT

"The true teacher defends his pupils against his own personal influence. He inspires self-distrust. He guides their eyes from himself to the spirit that quickens him. He will have no disciple."

Bronson Alcott

"At a small cost men are educated to make leather into shoes; but at a great cost, what am I educated to make?"

Thomas Carlyle

"Here are books, and we have brains to read them; here is a whole earth and a whole heaven, and we have eyes to look on them."

Thomas Carlyle

"D' ye think the colledges has much to do with the progress in the wurruld?" asked Mr. Hennessey.

"D' ye think," said Mr. Dooley, "'tis the mill that makes the wather run?"

Finley Peter Dunne

"Meek young men grow up in libraries believing it their duty to accept the views which Cicero, Locke, and Bacon have given; forgetful that Cicero, Locke and Bacon were only young men in libraries when they wrote these books."

Ralph Waldo Emerson

"For ten years now, without response,
I've held my erudite recitals.
And led by pupils by the nose,
And round we go, on crooked ways or straight.
And well I know that ignorance is our fate
And this I hate."

Goethe

"Give woman all the advantages and all the education which her organization, so tender and delicate will bear, but do not try to make the anemone into an oak."

Rev. John Todd

"Why can't somebody give us a list of things that everybody thinks and nobody says, and another list of things that everybody says and nobody thinks."

O. W. Holmes, Sr.

"Wear your learning like your watch in a private pocket; and do not pull it out and strike it, merely to show that you have one."

Chesterfield

"It's a difference of opinion that makes a horserace."

Mark Twain

Appreciation is extended to our representative from the Jahn & Ollier Engraving Company, Mr. Peter Gurwit; Mrs. Camille Johnson and Mr. Douglas Dunn of Vantine's; Mr. David McConnell of the Benton Review Publishing Company, Inc.; Doctor Norman Washburne, Professor John Holmes, Mrs. C. Van Auken and Professor and Mrs. Paul Flint — all of whom so willingly cooperated in making our mental picture become a yearbook reality.

To those who have had any part in producing the 1955 Jumbo, Thank You. To you, the book will have a special significance, for here is the culmination of many separate tasks performed with a gratifying display of industry, devotion, and spirit.

I wish to record my appreciation and thanks to Courtney Bourns who conscientiously carried out the difficult position of yearbook photographer; to Gordon Wood and Paul Sheiber who didn't stop when their individual sections were completed, but willingly worked until the last pages were proofread; to Lois Epstein who sought to know the typical 1955 Hill graduate through hours of computing and interpreting Senior Polls; to Marcia Kaplan who made our Non-Pictorial section one of the smallest in the history of the school; to Burt Rubin who efficiently carried on the financial affairs of the book; and especially to Reena Kazmann who did the art work for the entire annual and whose loyalty and warm encouragement personally meant so very much.

This is the 1955 yearbook. It has been the aim of the staff to give you a yearbook that will be of interest and worth now, but whose intrinsic value will be realized in reminiscent moods in the years ahead when the expansion and growth that started here will have reached its height.

Following graduation the members of your class will scatter far and wide. Except for occasional visits to the College there is small opportunity to recapture the spirit of college days except through association with other Tufts graduates organized in various centers of alumni population to encourage a cordial good fellowship and fraternity of interest. Younger alumni will receive a hearty welcome at meetings, and assistance through its membership.

In addition to separate departmental organizations, there are many active Tufts Clubs, whose membership is open to all alumni. The number is constantly expanding and is usually printed in the Alumni Review. Information about meetings will be furnished by the individual club officer, or by the Alumni Office at the College. Any other information in regard to alumni activities may be obtained by addressing Joseph W. Morton, Alumni Secretary, Tufts College, Medford 55, Massachusetts.
